

Churchill Asserts Roosevelt Victory Cheers England

Certain of Needed Help From U. S.

London — (P) — Prime Minister Churchill today described the reelection of President Roosevelt as "a message from across the ocean of great encouragement and good cheer."

Speaking at a London luncheon, Churchill said "we offer our heartfelt congratulations to President Roosevelt, who has received an unprecedented mark of American confidence in being chosen for the third time to lead his mighty people forward."

"We shall now receive the support of the products of the gigantic munitions workshops and the matchless workshops, furnaces and foundries of the American union."

"Our successful resistance and final victory have been proclaimed by all parties in America."

"The enemy is doing his utmost to cut us off from the vital supplies overseas."

"Therefore the maintenance of our seapower is an absolute necessity to our victory."

"There is one small heroic country today to whom our thoughts go out in sympathy and admiration—Greece."

Pledge to Greece

"To the valiant Greek people we send from the heart of London our promise to them that we will do our best to aid them in their struggle."

"We will never cease to strike at the aggressor in ever-increasing strength from this time forth."

"It is now nine months since the king and parliament confided to me and my colleagues the grave and heavy task to which we have devoted ourselves."

"It is lucky we did not make any extravagant or optimistic promises, because a succession of melancholy disasters and terrible assaults and perils have befallen us."

"Between survival and victory there is a long road to tread. In spite of all the blows we have endured we have not abandoned one jot of any of our obligations and undertakings towards the captive or enslaved countries of Europe."

"For all of these we are striving and toiling and our victory will liberate them all."

Churchill also referred to the campaign of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican candidate, in these words:

"We are deeply touched by the words of kindness and good will and promises of aid which were uttered by Mr. Willkie on behalf of the Republican party, which he championed so ably."

Schedule Hearing In Woman's Death

Milwaukee — (P) — Leonard Seamer, 44, who police said confessed the murder of Mrs. Cora Linsmeier last Oct. 30, will be brought into court for preliminary hearing today.

Seamer, an ex-convict, told Detective Captain Adolph Kraemer that he wanted "to get this thing over with in a hurry."

The body of Mrs. Linsmeier, 52-year-old widow, was found beneath a pile of bedding in the hallway next to her one-room apartment Nov. 1.

Seamer was arrested Wednesday night in Chicago. He told Captain Kraemer that he struck Mrs. Linsmeier with a hammer "when she hit me in the face after I admitted . . . that the story I'd been telling her about having a lot of money coming to me from my sister's estate was a lie."

Total Presidential Vote Will Be Close
To 50,000,000 Mark

Washington — (P) — The total of votes cast for President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie in Tuesday's election amounted to 18,238,481 in today's latest unofficial tabulation, indicating that the final presidential count, covering all minor party candidates, would be close to 50,000,000.

The final 1936 total was 45,647,117. The latest tabulation showed that President Roosevelt received 26,361,762 votes and Willkie 21,876,719 in 120,620 of the country's 127,245 voting units, making Mr. Roosevelt's plurality 4,485,043.

The electoral vote standing remained unchanged, with the president having 449 from 38 states and Willkie 82 from 10 states.

Warden Terms Parole System 'Safety Valve'

Milwaukee — (P) — The parole system provides "a safety valve for society," Warden John C. Burke of Waupun state prison told the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Society for the Friendless last night.

"The shock of freedom often proves too great to a man just released from prison," he said. "A parole granted shortly before expiration of his normal sentence provides a safety valve for society, a probation period which often helps him readjust himself in society by regulating his conduct."

No Added Taxes, Heil Declares

Old Age Pension Fund And Some Salaries Will Be Increased

Madison — (P) — Old age pension and relief appropriations and the salaries of some state employees will be increased, but there will be no new taxes during the next two years, Governor Heil said yesterday.

Discussing state affairs at his first formal press conference here since his reelection Tuesday, the governor announced he would recommend a 120-day legislative session, and that hearings on the 1941-42 state budget would begin Nov. 26.

"The cost of government won't be any higher for state administration, but we are going to spend more money for relief and old age pensions," the governor said.

"But there will be no new taxes. The government will be run on the same economical basis as in the last two years. We see a betterment of the entire financial picture," he said.

Declaring he could find no one in the state service "who is getting too much money," the governor said he favored a "reclassification" of salaries of state employees.

"We might cut out a few jobs, but we will not cut salaries," he said. "I will raise them upwards. I never cut a human being's salary in my life."

To questions concerning the reported resignation offer of August Frey, research director, the governor replied:

"I have nothing to say on the Frey matter."

The governor said he would leave on a "week or 10-day" vacation trip with Mrs. Heil tomorrow, but he declined to disclose his itinerary.

Sees Threat of '30-Year War'

Dawes Thinks U. S. Entry Into Conflict Will Be 'Inevitable'

Chicago — (P) — United States participation in the European conflict probably would make it a "30-year war," in the opinion of General Charles G. Dawes, vice president in the Coolidge administration and former ambassador to Great Britain.

He contended that "certain elements of our population are luring us into the war to crush Hitler."

"Sending war materials to Europe will be followed by sending our men over there—it will be inevitable," General Dawes said last night in an address to the 17th Engineers club.

"Our entry into the war will probably lengthen it to a 30-year war. England has indicated that she cannot pay cash for all the material she needs. We are asked to be allies to supply that."

Dawes contended England was "virtually blockaded" and that her conflict with Germany has reached a stalemate, with the two nations settling down to bombing of enemy civilian populations.

"Appeasers are ridiculed," he said. "Appeasement is an attempt to negotiate peace. Yet in face of a possible starvation of the people in England, France and other countries, no attempts are being made to negotiate peace."

Two Former Spanish Leaders Are Executed

Madrid — (P) — Julian Zugazagoria, former member of the cabinet of Republican Spain, and Antonio Cruz Salido, one-time Republican secretary of war, were executed at dawn today.

The final 1936 total was 45,647,117. The latest tabulation showed that President Roosevelt received 26,361,762 votes and Willkie 21,876,719 in 120,620 of the country's 127,245 voting units, making Mr. Roosevelt's plurality 4,485,043.

Promise to Keep Up Wage and Hour Standards in Re-Arming

Washington — (P) — Maintenance of wage and hour standards on defense projects was put down today as a primary concern of the war department in its efforts to press forward the nation's re-arming program.

There must be no relaxation of these standards, the department declared, if the program is to move "effectively forward."

Referring directly to construction of thousands of army cantonments in preparation for expansion of the land forces, Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, issued last night a declaration setting forth that general labor policy and calling for payment of overtime in factories where a longer-than-normal work-week is necessary to production.

Mine Blamed For Sinking of U. S. Freighter

26,032-Ton Liner, Former Jap Vessel, Reported Bombed

Sydney, Australia — (P) — Naval Minister William Hughes announced today that the 5,883-ton American freighter City of Rayville blew up and sank last night off Cape Otway, near Melbourne, but said 37 members of the crew of 38 were saved.

Reuters, British news agency, quoted some members of the crew as blaming sabotage for the blast, but Hughes said the sinking probably was caused by a mine.

(The City of Rayville was the first American ship to be sunk by war activity since the outbreak of hostilities Sept. 3, 1939. The United States neutrality law bars American ships from belligerent ports but Australia has not been declared within the zone of conflict.)

Naval and fishing boats assisted in the rescue of the survivors, who were landed at a coastal town. The missing man was identified as Third Engineer James Bryan, 22, of Norfolk, Va.

Second Ship Sunk

Hughes had announced previously the sinking of an unidentified British freighter in Australia waters and said this also was due to mines. The Rayville thus was the second ship sunk within 24 hours.

The explosion occurred while the American freighter was enroute from Adelaide to Melbourne, about 10 miles off the coast, and the blast wrecked the forepart of the vessel and hurled wreckage and a portion of the lead cargo through the superstructure.

Liner Disabled

New York — (P) — A message reporting that the 26,032-ton liner Empress of Japan, former flagship of the Pacific fleet of the Canadian Pacific Steamship company, had been bombed and disabled by German planes in the north Atlantic was received today by the New York office of Domei, the Japanese news agency.

The message came from a Domei correspondent aboard the Japanese liner Fushimi Maru and said the Japanese ship had intercepted an SOS from the Canadian vessel.

It said the attack occurred this morning at latitude 53.54, longitude 14.14, about 300 miles west of Ireland, and that the Empress of Japan was disabled by a direct hit in her engine room.

The Empress of Japan, formerly plying between Vancouver, Honolulu, Japan and China ports and Manila, had been requisitioned by the British admiralty early in the war. It is believed she has been a troop carrier.

Threats of Suits
And Recounts Tangle
Michigan Situation

Lansing — (P) — Threatened litigation and recounts and barrage of contradictory statements brought into Michigan's tangled post-election affairs.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, fled from it all to some unannounced destination to rest before tackling the problems of how to cope with a preponderantly Republican legislature, and a state elective "cabinet" that will have too many Republicans in it for the liking of any Democratic executive.

A Democratic board of strategy, led by State Chairman Charles S. Perritt, announced the party's central committee was "considering starting legal proceedings" to challenge the entire vote cast in the city of Jackson on grounds that voting machines in the city had been so adjusted they discriminated against the Democratic ticket. Thousands of votes were at stake in the city.

The election of Herbert J. Ruston, Republican as attorney general, and of Theodore L. Frey, Democrat, as state treasurer, were by such slim margins, as disclosed in the unofficial tabulations, that leaders of both parties threatened to petition for recounts in precincts where they thought they might gain an advantage.

British Attack Munich Beer Cellar After Hitler Address

WILLKIE TO SPEAK TO FOLLOWERS—Wendell L. Willkie, defeated Republican presidential candidate, looked over a huge stock of telegrams and letters and decided to deliver a radio address Monday night. He said, "I feel an obligation to state my viewpoint of the obligations and position of the millions who voted for me."

'Fatal Axis Blow' May Mean Deadly Sea War

BY FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

New York — (P) — There is increasing evidence, factual and suggestive, that Hitler is concentrating the total energies of Germany's naval and air force on smashing the merchant ship transport of England and making it impossible for considerable quantities of American planes, guns and munitions to reach British shores.

This may be the "fatal axis blow" which the totalitarian press of Germany and Italy has been double-talking about for weeks. It is unquestionably, the punch behind Hitler's ironic references to American arms production at Munich last night. . . . References "applauded" by the crutch of R.A.F. bombs in that same Bavarian city.

Said Hitler: "We shall see who is blockaded in a few months; we or the others."

The factual evidence of Hitler's determination in this respect already lies in Davey Jones locker and ready to hand.

Broughton Wants
Ad Investigation

Washington — (P) — The senate campaign committee undertook a post-election inquiry into political contributions today by sending agents to Milwaukee, Wis., to investigate a complaint that a corporation may have contributed toward the cost of advertisements urging support of Wendell L. Willkie.

Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) said the committee had received a complaint from C. E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman, concerning a series of newspaper advertisements. Broughton claimed the advertisements were placed in the names of persons who did not pay for them.

Gillette said the committee would continue to look into all complaints made to it about political contributions so that it could round out a report to congress covering "loop holes" in the Hatch act, which limits the campaign expenditures to $3,000,000 for any political committee and to $5,000 for an individual.

Contributions by corporations, such as are alleged to have been made in the Milwaukee case, Gillette said, are prohibited by provisions of the corrupt practices act.

Ask Government to Ban Sale of Drinks
To Military Forces

Chicago — (P) — The federal government had for consideration today a plea from national officers of the Women's Temperance union to ban the sale of alcoholic beverages to soldiers and sailors of the nation's peace-time army and navy.

The organization's executive officers, who yesterday met to plan the temperance campaign authorized by the 1940 W. C. T. U. convention, said in a statement that they were seeking defense-time prohibition "in answer to multiplying requests from women in every corner of the nation."

The statement recommended immediate action by the government to place liquor beyond the reach of men called up through selective service, and others in the military, as a "moral defense measure."

Warplane Plant Dedicated Today

Buffalo, N. Y. — (P) — An $8,000,000 warplane factory being built here as part of the national defense program was dedicated today by Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson as "an earnest of the fact that America means business."

In an address prepared for ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Curtiss-Wright plant adjoining Buffalo airport, Patterson asserted the airplanes to be built here will be "pursuit ships, heavily armed, equipped with every modern device of offensive war."

"These ships are not designed to spread death among populations that cannot fight back," Patterson declared. "Their function is to guard our own skies—to make them unsafe for any foe who might seek to descend upon us in search of what today are euphemistically called military objectives."

Skull Fracture Fatal To Locomotive Fireman

Chicago — (P) — Henry Honeyager, 57, of Milwaukee, a fireman for the Milwaukee Road, was taken from the cab of a Milwaukee bound passenger train yesterday suffering from a fatal skull fracture.

He died enroute to a Chicago hospital. The train was flagged when a track foreman saw Honeyager hanging from the cab window, bleeding about the head.

Railroad police said Matt Indra, the engineer, was unaware of the accident until the train was flagged, and did not know how the accident occurred.

Victory Sure for Reich, Hitler Says

Germany's Production Leads World, He Claims as He Ridicules America

Munich — (P) — British bombs plummeted down on Munich last night "sometime after" Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had addressed his Nazi party comrades in a confident speech commemorating the seventeenth anniversary of the beer hall putsch, informed Berlin sources acknowledged today.

They emphasized that Hitler had completed his address in which he declared that Germany is "prepared for the future as never before," and "strong enough to meet any combination in the world" before the Royal Air Force raiders arrived.

The Berlin sources said Munich citizens were forced to take shelter in their cellars during the raid.

Surrounded by the Nazi party's "old guard," Hitler declared in his stormy speech that German production capacity is the highest in the world and that the German army, the "best military instrument of the world, is uninterruptedly trained and improved."

He promised certain victory for the Reich in the war.

He spoke sarcastically of the United States as "the land of unlimited freedom," adding that "every immigrant must pass an unusually difficult examination before permission is given him to tread the sacred soil of democracy, although scarcely 10 persons to the square kilometer live there."

Great Reserves

"As far as American production goes," he said with sarcasm, "one cannot even represent it with astronomical figures."

"But I can assure you that German production capacity is the highest in the world. . . . for we are today in a position to mobilize the powers of almost all Europe."

"Our reserves are so great that I must stop production in many fields because there is no possibility of storing these masses now."

He indicated that the Reich, as a result of this stop order, had freed additional industrial facilities for airplane production. He said he had switched production facilities to the improvement of the things which "I believe must be especially strong."

Around him as he spoke behind closed doors in the Lowenbrau beer cellar were leaders of the party and survivors of both the 1923 putsch and the bomb explosion which rocked Buergerbrau hall a year ago only a short time after Hitler had left. He made no mention of that incident last night.

Won't Compromise

The Fuehrer rejected all thought of compromise in the war and declared:

"I imagine that I am not only the hardest man which the German nation's greatest munitions producers there are. The factories belong to them. Centuries, but in addition I possess the greatest authority."

"I have no munitions shares in my possession. I earn nothing from this war. . . . These international criminals are at the same time the"

Doris Duke, Husband
Separated, She Admits

Los Angeles — (P) — Doris Duke Cromwell, the heiress, says her marriage to James H. R. Cromwell, former minister to Canada, is over—but she has no plans for a divorce.

"I've separated from my husband," she told reporters as she boarded a liner for Honolulu last night.

"Yes, it's permanent. I am going to my home in Hawaii for an indefinite stay."

Asked if she would seek divorce, she replied:

"I have no plans."

Greeks Report Entire Italian
Division Trapped in Mountains

Athens — (P) — An entire Italian division—perhaps 13,000 men—was reported in informed quarters today to have been trapped by Greece's defenders in the Pindus mountains with its capitulation only a matter of hours.

The troops were identified as Premier Mussolini's famed Centaur division. It was said that hundreds of the men, including the commanding general, had been taken prisoner.

Counter-attacking Greek mountain troops were credited with throwing the Italian invasion machine into reverse along the whole 100-mile Greek-Albanian frontier fighting line.

The high command reported that the Greek gains were greatest on the central battlefield, where part of the bow the Italians bent in the Greek front line was straightened out, and in the deepening Greek wedge into Albania around encephalocortica.

The Greeks were said to have captured more hills around the strategic Italian base at Korca.

15-Year-Old Borrows
Name to Get Into Army

Milwaukee — (P) — As soon as Joseph Bezak, 19, gets his name back he's going to join the army.

Rejected because of a dental defect, he spent $50 on his teeth and returned to the recruiting office to discover that "Joseph Bezak" already had enlisted and was sent to Fort Sheridan, Ill.

A 15-year-old chum had borrowed his name because he was underage. A telegram to Fort Sheridan was expected to make Joe's name available for his own use.

Also Subject North Italy To Bombing

London — (P) — A stick of British bombs overshoot its mark and hit the famous beer cellar where Adolf Hitler spoke at Munich last night and started a large fire, the British Press association said today.

The air ministry said Munich, as well as military objectives in northern Italy, were raided.

An air ministry announcement reported that "military objectives" in the birthplace city of national socialism were attacked heavily at the time Hitler was addressing a rally of the Nazi old guard, and the press association said one salvo of explosives missed the target and hit the beer cellar.

The British bombers flew more than 600 miles and reached Munich before 9 p. m. (2 p. m., C. S. T.), the air ministry said, and dropped bombs for more than an hour.

Railways, which run through the center of the city, were reported particular objectives.

Broadcast Canceled

(The National Broadcasting company in New York had been advised that Hitler would speak at the rally from 12:20 p. m. to 2 p. m., C. S. T., yesterday. The broadcast later was postponed to 2 p. m., then was canceled.)

"It is learned that military objectives at Munich were heavily bombed during last night's R. A. F. attacks on Germany," the air ministry reported. "The first of the British bombing force reached Munich, more than 600 miles from this country, before 9 p. m."

Communications objectives elsewhere in Germany and industrial sections of Italy were said to have been bombed in the overnight raids.

The air ministry said Milan and Turin, were "among towns visited by the R. A. F. last night."

The British Press association said there was little doubt it was the visit of the R. A. F. which put a stop to any plans to broadcast the Nazi Fuehrer's speech.

R.A.F. Raids Italy

An air ministry communique said the attack on railway stations and goods yards in Munich was made by a strong force of bombers while another force struck at Italy.

An aircraft factory at Turin and the Pirelli magneto works at Milan were said to have been bombed.

Targets in Germany and Nazi-occupied territory which the communique listed included oil refineries at Gelsenkirchen and Frankfurt, aircraft factories at Nuernberg and Amsterdam, freight yards at Hamm, Soest, Osnabruck, Duesberg, Rohrbort, and the hook of Holland, railway communications at Stuttgart, Mors, Saarbrucken, Mainz and Le Havre, and 18 German airdromes.

A German submarine base at Lorient on the Nazi-held coast also was reported bombed "with good results."

The air ministry announced the overnight attacks "on industrial targets in Italy and on communications and other objectives in Germany" after reports of alarms in Swiss cities gave the first hint that the R. A. F. was striking again across the Alps.

Attacks on England

Meanwhile, the nightly Nazi air attacks on England were concentrated primarily on London, where some casualties were reported. One bomb scored a direct hit on a shelter.

More London buildings were damaged, but an air ministry communique said "both the damage and casualties were less than on the previous night."

The raid started at dusk, but dwindled to sporadic attacks soon after midnight.

Wide areas of London shook with bomb explosions in the early hours of the night; night raid which the air ministry described as "somewhat heavy at first."

Communities near the British capital shared in the attack, and raiders, for the most part operating singly, were reported over other scattered sections.

Progressives Now Are Thinking About Fusion

Heil's Minority Victory Raises Doubt About Wisdom of 3rd Party

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Election analyses continued to be made today by defeated and victor alike in the Wisconsin election Tuesday, but probably the most significant election post-mortem comes from one of the highest figures in the Progressive party of Wisconsin, William T. Evjue, who asks Progressive party followers to consider the wisdom of scuttling their six year old vehicle in favor of merging with one of the older political parties.

Evjue, for a generation the Progressive official journalistic mouthpiece and one of the last of the active Progressive politicians of the senior LaFollette's day, yesterday commented upon the minority election of the Republican state administration and declared that it was the result of a division between Democratic and Progressive "liberals" in Wisconsin.

Pointing to the more than 800,000 votes cast against Heil by the supporters of McGovern and Loomis, and Heil's victory by slightly more than 500,000 votes, Evjue called the result "one of the greatest tragedies in Wisconsin political history," and asked the Progressives of Wisconsin:

"Shall the Progressive party be continued?"

"Shall the Progressive movement in this state attempt to capture the Democratic party and make it a truly liberal party? Should it attempt to do the same thing in the Republican party, as in years past?"

Evjue referred in the latter paragraph to the fact that for most of its history, the LaFollette Progressive movement succeeded as a rebel branch of the old Republican party, which it generally controlled.

In the years before 1934, when the LaFollette's struck out with a new party organization, the primary election contests between the LaFollette Progressives and the regulars in the Republican party represented the principal election issue, just as today the Democratic primaries in the southern state fight their principal contests in the primaries.

Since the Progressives formed their third party only one state administration has been elected by a majority vote. It was recalled here today, that of Julius P. Heil in 1938. That election was effected by a Coalition of Republicans and Democrats.

Evjue challenged liberal Progressives and liberal Democrats to get together immediately to plan a fusion for the next election. "These problems cannot be solved by letting them slide until 60 days before the election," he maintained.

tic convoys. The Italians moreover have boasted that their submarines, as well as their planes, are operating from an Atlantic base, concentrating on Britain's south Atlantic shipping while Hitler's U-boats prowled the waters to the north.

Before this is settled the battleships which Hitler has built and hoarded may come out of their havens westward to another, unpredictable, Jutland.

Still Rules Waves

Let this seem too morose to the friends of the British, let it be underlined that Britannia still rules the waves and there is every evidence she intends to try to keep on ruling them.

Churchill and his admiralty will buy, build, beg, borrow or requisition every cargo bottom physically and legally within their grasp. Already, they've risked soviet vexation by taking over two dozen ships belonging to the three little Baltic countries which Russia swallowed last summer. Dewitt Mackenzie has deduced that Churchill is fishing for more American destroyers; there is other evidence to suggest that the English soon will be asking for American cargo ships or credits with which to buy them.

Churchill has indicated also that big British flotilla production will be shortly on the seas to put steam behind the U-boat hunt.

The R.A.F. blasts not only at Munich—night after night it straddles the Hitler coast, battering at submarine and ship yards in Germany's North sea ports and at German-occupied submarine bases like that at French Lorient.

The battle at Montevideo proved that a pocket-battleship can be caught.

Above all, the people of Britain are the sons and daughters of Drake Nelson: the sea is their weapon and their life; salt water runs in their veins.

Behind the desks in every department of government in London and scattered through the benches of parliament you'll find sea-dogs doing the thinking; in almost every home of England's leader class you'll find a naval handbook.

Even the tea-rustlers at the ministry of information in London wear the sea scout's blouse and white leggings. The chief censor is an admiral.

Reduction in County Costs Likely for '41

Board of Supervisors Will Open Annual Fall Session Next Tuesday

Prospects that the county budget for 1941 will be smaller than that for 1940 are bright, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk, who is making preparations for the November meeting of the county board.

Unless unforeseen appropriations are made by the board which opens its annual fall session Tuesday, the budget for next year will be under that for 1940 which provided for expenditures of $1,053,703. The tax levy for 1940 was $568.193.

A new highway committee will be elected and vacancies filled on the asylum board of trustees, sanatorium board of trustees, training school board, park commission and safety council. A relief director and county physician also will be named.

The proposed stamp plan under which relief clients would get their groceries with federal food stamps will be presented to the board.

The recently completed county safety motion picture will be shown to the board on Thursday. Annual reports of the various county departments also will be heard. The November session of the board, longest of the year, is expected to continue through Nov. 20.

The Rev. Mr. Schewe served as pastor at Center for 19 years, from 1891 to 1909, and at other Lutheran churches in Wisconsin during 50 years as a Lutheran minister. His last pastorate was at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church at Tess Corners.

Survivors are two sons, Theodore, a Lutheran minister in Plainville, Minn., and George, Waukegan; and three daughters, Miss Edith Schewe and Miss Eleanor Schewe, West Allis, and Mrs. Hedwig Woods, Chicago.

One of the headline speakers will be Senator Wiley, Republican.

An exhibit of the cheesemakers' finest products will be a feature. The entries will be judged and prizes will be awarded for the best.

General Lear, as commanding officer of the Second army, is in charge of the field operations and the training of the 27th, 33rd and 35th divisions of National guard troops, the 5th and 6th divisions of the regular army and the second cavalry division of the regular army, the last named still to be activated. The 33rd division, an Illinois organization, is to go into active service in January for training at Camp Peay, Tullahoma, Tenn. The other divisions also will train in the south.

War Situation Today

British bombs fell last night on Munich, where Adolf Hitler addressed his party comrades on the seventeenth anniversary of the Nazi beer cellar putsch and the British Press association declared one stick of explosives hit the meeting hall.

A large fire broke out, the press association said.

Informed Berlin sources said Hitler had completed his address when the attack was made; British press dispatches said the raiders flew over Munich 14 minutes after Hitler was scheduled to begin speaking and attacked for more than an hour and a half.

In London today Prime Minister Winston Churchill described the reelection of President Roosevelt as a "message across the ocean of great encouragement and good cheer."

KILLED IN AUTO BLAST—William Rebhorn (left), 19, and his sister, Lois (right), 18, were killed in a blast which shattered their family automobile as they were about to enter it. Police believed a bomb had been placed near the steering wheel of the car. The victims are children of Dr. E. H. Rebhorn, Scranton public health director. Authorities saw no clear motive, but indicated there was a possibility a disgruntled patient of Dr. Rebhorn might have planted the explosive.

British Fliers Bomb Munich And Renew Raids on Italians

British planes bombed Turin, in northern Italy, last night, as well as Cagliari, Sardinia, the Italian high command reported, and listed casualties as 10 dead and several injured.

The raids moved the Rome newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia to say today that "tremendous" air bombardments of England and its allies would start immediately in reprisal for the bombings of Italian cities.

In Salonika, Greece, reports were heard today that Italian forces in Albania were withdrawing from the Koriza sector, and in Rome there were reports of new "diplomatic moves" by Germany and Italy, perhaps during this weekend.

Greek troops steadily tightened their ring about the Italian base at Koriza wit, the occupation of more dominating hilltops while successfully resisting fascist pressure along the whole 100-mile battlefield, authoritative Greek sources declared.

For several days Greek artillery has been shelling the city where some sources estimated 30,000 Italians were "trapped."

Greek spokesmen in Athens said more than 2,500 Italians had been captured in the two-week-old war, including the commanding general of the fascist Centaur division and other officers.

A British report said Marshal Badoglio, Ethiopian campaign veteran, had replaced the unidentified Italian officer in command of the invasion of Greece.

Nazi Germany celebrated the anniversary of the Munich beer hall putsch with an air of confident jubilation, highlighted by Hitler's declaration that the reich was ready, "as never before," to face "any combination in the world."

His words forecast a severe winter of warfare—both on sea and in the air—against Britain. He rejected all thought of compromise and described himself as the "hardest man" in Germany.

Hitler referred sarcastically to the United States at several points and asserted that German production capacity was the greatest in the world.

The Japanese newspaper Kokumun demanded today that the Japanese government "eliminate" as traitors all Japanese who opposed that nation's entry into the Rome-Berlin axis, intimating a violent behind-the-scenes dispute over the wisdom of Tokio's foreign policy.

John Lewis Has Just Begun to Fight: Lawrence

May Prove Political Factor of Major Importance in '42-44

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—What will the role of John L. Lewis be in the future of America? Those who say he is finished do not know Mr. Lewis or his fighting qualities.

For the truth is John L. Lewis has just begun to fight. He will be a factor to be reckoned with from now until the 1942 congressional campaign, and then in 1944 and perhaps many years thereafter.

For while Mr. Lewis divests himself of the robe of office in the CIO, he remains as president of the United Mine Workers of America and he retains, moreover, certain convictions which he held before election and which he may take occasion to repeat from time to time as events unfold.

Public Will be Sounded Out To Guide U. S. Foreign Policy

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Several important proposals in foreign policy are about to be tried out on public opinion by unofficial groups. If the reaction is favorable the administration is likely to proceed, although at present it is uncommitted.

These proposals will urge the following:

1. Easing of the neutrality act to permit use of American shipping in carrying supplies to England.

2. Easing of the Johnson act and of the neutrality act to permit direct financial aid to England, either in the form of loans or of outright gifts.

3. Furnishing of the secret super-bombing to Britain.

4. Resistance to the Hoover plan for sending American food to German-occupied territory.

5. Withdrawal of recognition from the Vichy government, or at least the curbing of Vichy agents in the United States on the ground that they are fronts for Germany.

Discussion of these proposals is expected shortly to be stimulated by the William Allen White committee and kindred groups interested in more aid to Britain.

That was the method used in building up support for the sending of destroyers to England. After sufficient public approval had been developed by these private groups, President Roosevelt acted.

That is the technique that has been developed during the present crisis. Rarely does the administration itself take the lead publicly. To launch any such proposal as the destroyer deal cold upon the American public, straight out of the White House, is regarded as too risky. That method tends to stir up immediate resistance, and forces the government itself to battle with public opinion.

But the William Allen White group and several others have developed smoothly efficient machinery for persuading the American public. The White committee has more than 700 local chapters throughout the country. They can be sent into action for a given proposal within a few hours by the simple process of sending out a blanket telegram to all from New York headquarters. Each of these local chapters is a cross-section of its own community, built up regardless of political party lines. Each has access to local press and radio outlets and to local speakers.

Groups Work In Close Harmony With Administration

These groups work in close harmony with the administration. Usually proposals are discussed informally with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull before being offered to the public. While it is unfair to say that such proposals have the prior approval of the administration, it is not likely that these committees, interested in furthering the administration policy, would advocate any measure that met with disfavor in Washington. Their main purpose is to arouse public support for the policy of the Roosevelt administration and for specific measures tending to make that policy effective.

Against these groups supporting the administration are some opposing groups, notably the America first committee, of which General Robert E. Wood of Chicago is acting chairman. A few days ago under Secretary of State Sumner Wells, in a speech here, severely criticized General Wood. Others interested in the America first group are Henry Ford, Alice Longworth, Hanford MacNider and William R. Castle, under secretary of state for Hoover, who is supposed to be generally sympathetic to the America first program.

One point on this committee's program is opposition to sending ships, planes and materials of war to England or to any other belligerent, on the ground that it dangerously weakens our own national defense and threatens to involve the United States in the war abroad.

Strong feeling exists between the William Allen White group and the America first group. The former regards the latter as appeasers and the latter regard the former as interventionists. From these two groups and others like them will come a good deal of the leadership in the battles over specific measures in the field of foreign policy. They serve as the shock troops on their respective sides.

Victory Sure For Germany, Hitler Says

They make the business. They are the same people we had earlier in Germany."

He dangled the threat of intensified air and submarine warfare before the British, and declared "we will see who is blocked in a few months. We or the others."

Reviewing the war to date, the fuhrer said millions expended by Germany thus far amounted to "only one part of one month's production," and listed German casualties at a little more than half of those in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. German losses on this basis would total slightly more than 20,000.

Reich Won't "Break"

"One of us must break and that will not be Germany," Hitler said of the war and Germany's enemies. "The moment will come when the gentlemen who now conquer the entire world with their mouths will have to stand up with their weapons. Then we will see who has employed the months better—we or the others."

He said that when the hour of the decisive attack comes, "I hope to reach again the same results which we have behind us. We have prepared everything most fundamentally to act quickly and daringly then."

He said that when he became aware that the British were "determined under any conditions to go to war," he had "only a single wish; if they are already determined to war on us that they do it while I still live. For I know that would have to be the hardest struggle ever set before the German people."

Ridiculing British estimates of the number of German submarines sunk, he said British Prime Minister Winston Churchill had no idea of how they were being increased in number.

He also ridiculed Churchill "for beginning an air war with exactly the weapons in which, compared with us, England is the weakest."

Sarcastically he called Churchill a "strategist of the greatest genius yet born."

"They wanted to destroy Germany with an air war," he said. "I will now show them who will be destroyed."

Johnson Sees Opportunity for Roosevelt to Build U. S. Unity

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

New York City—There is a classic army yarn about a young lieutenant or "shavetail" just out of West Point. He reported to his captain at a western station in those days when captains were old gruff and apt to be very wise. This one treated him so kindly that he became over-enthusiastic and said: "Oh captain. I can see that we are going to get along in complete cooperation."

"Yes," said the wrinkled old veteran, "and in this man's army, you'll do all the cooperating."

A situation something like that surrounds the late opponents of President Roosevelt. I don't know one who, because of the danger in the world, isn't perfectly willing to forget the late and bitter political fight and join up with recent political adversaries in anything that will advance the interests of the country and cement its strength. But it takes at least two for any true cooperation.

The tremendous vote for Mr. Willkie measures the mass of protest and skepticism on some of Mr. Roosevelt's acts and policies. Any hostility or roughshod riding by this administration over contrary opinions might destroy the president's great opportunity to usher in the healthiest "era of good-feeling" and national unity that has occurred—at least in my lifetime.

I thought that kind of era would come in 1937, but some of Mr. Roosevelt's closest advisers and strongest henchmen were vindictive scalp hunters. They said they had a mandate and started out to keel-haul and purge even their own party. It didn't work so well and maybe with this much smaller majority, there won't be so much reprisal.

Old Andy Jackson was like that. He thought he had been cheated out of one election and the assaults on him had been very hateful and highly personal. It was said that he retired to the hermitage "after having rewarded all his friends and punished all his enemies." That may be a great personal satisfaction, but it is just what the country does not need at a time like this.

Thomas Jefferson is as great a titulary deity of the Democratic party. He didn't do that. In his first inaugural, he even offended his own party by telling the people that with the election over, they were all Democrats and Republicans—or the equivalent labels of that day—Republicans and Federalists. Lincoln knew Secret Of Cementing the Nation

Abraham Lincoln didn't do it either. He appointed to his cabinet some of the strongest personal opponents in his own newly formed and hodge-podge party.

Any man who has to fight as has Mr. Roosevelt is bound to support his friends without too much consideration for his opponents. Everybody expects that. What is now needed is good will and mutual confidence among all Americans, and that is exactly what is within Mr. Roosevelt's grasp today.

But the twenty-two million people who voted for Mr. Willkie, representing the views of almost half the population of a great nation, can't like the young army shavetail, "do all the cooperating." Their opinions must be respected, their good will returned in kind and opportunities given them to serve, at least in non-political capacities.

As Woodrow Wilson said, this country can prepare better for defense by the "spontaneous cooperation of a free people" than by any kaiserian goose-stepping. The fact that the men for army training are volunteering within class 1A of the draft without conscription is an excellent sign. I am sure that industry would now accept a voluntary system of priorities. Little if any added personalized power in the president is needed just now, at least for national defense. Give this country a few weeks to cool off and it could be stronger and more united under Mr. Roosevelt than it has ever been since 1918.

tail, "do all the cooperating." Their opinions must be respected, their good will returned in kind and opportunities given them to serve, at least in non-political capacities.

As Woodrow Wilson said, this country can prepare better for defense by the "spontaneous cooperation of a free people" than by any kaiserian goose-stepping. The fact that the men for army training are volunteering within class 1A of the draft without conscription is an excellent sign. I am sure that industry would now accept a voluntary system of priorities. Little if any added personalized power in the president is needed just now, at least for national defense. Give this country a few weeks to cool off and it could be stronger and more united under Mr. Roosevelt than it has ever been since 1918.

Road Committee Asks Budget of $132,000 for '41

County Supervisors To Consider Proposal At November Session

The county highway committee yesterday recommended a 1941 budget of $132,000, a drop of $8,000 from the budget of 1940, at its meeting yesterday. The budget will be presented to the county board at its November session which opens Tuesday.

The original budget recommended by the committee for 1940 was $155,950.56, but the committee later slashed $15,000 from the county trunk system maintenance fund. The 1941 recommended budget figure is $23,000 below the budget first recommended for 1940. No money is set up in the county trunk system maintenance fund for 1941.

With $30,000 recommended for administration expenses, the item is $1,000 below that in the 1940 budget. An allowance of $35,000 for new construction next year is an increase of $15,000 over this year. Because of the change in the county insurance plan whereby the county carries its own insurance, no money was set up in the compensation insurance fund. Last year $8,000 was placed in the fund.

A total of $20,000, same as for this year, was set up for road oiling during 1941. A fund of $25,000 for winter maintenance on the county trunk system was recommended, a drop of $10,000 from this year. The traffic officers' fund was increased $1,000 to $15,000.

The county's share of the cost of county and town aid bridges in 1941 will be $14,000.33 as against $14,550.56 allowed in the budget for this year. Set up in the emergency bridge fund is $20,000, an increase of $15,000 from this year. For maintenance and construction of garages in the districts is $6,000 as compared with $11,000 for this year. The budget figure for 1940 also showed $5,000 for a storage building erected at the county garage.

The National Zeitung of Basel, quoted the Italian radio as saying: "The Swiss must not think themselves inviolable—this is our last warning."

An article in Il Popolo di Brescia said: "We will place the name of Switzerland—which for months has allowed air violations by enemy aircraft—side by side with that of our detested enemy."

Cold Spell Will Start Sunday Night, Bureau Says; 40 in City Today

Light rain will continue tonight in Appleton and vicinity, but snow flurries are expected in the northern part of the state. The entire state will be in the path of a cold wave that will set in Sunday evening.

A dreary drizzle started this morning in Appleton, in contrast to the usual brilliant Saturday weather this fall, and was still active near the noon hour. Yesterday morning's reading of 39 at 9 o'clock was the coldest for the 24-hour period beginning at that hour. The period brought .03 of an inch of rain.

Phoenix, with 82, and Williston, N. D., with 9 above, turned in the high and low readings in the nation yesterday.

Teachers on Way to Homes

Annual Convention Closing After Three Days of Addresses

Milwaukee —(P)—The Wisconsin Education Association prepared to close its annual meeting today after three days of addresses by nationally-known leaders.

More than 15,000 teachers were registered, a record number.

Dr. Homer Cameron, professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin, told the health education and mental hygiene sections yesterday that truancy and day dreaming in children were caused by the "same frustrations that make the adult want to get away from it all." Environment must be considered in helping them readjust themselves, he said.

Mark H. Ingraham, professor of mathematics at the University of Wisconsin, asserted that the state was nearly $4,500,000 behind in payment of its share of the Wisconsin Teachers' Retirement fund.

He suggested that the legislature enact a statute to permit the payment of $500,000 forfeited by teachers who left Wisconsin before reaching the age of 76 to the amount in the state owes the retirement fund.

U. S. Indict's Under SEC Act

Fort Wayne Company, President, 2 Others Charged With Fraud

South Bend, Ind. —(P)—United States District Attorney James R. Fleming announced today the indictment of a Fort Wayne securities corporation, its president and two former Lake county officials for alleged violation of the securities and exchange commission act. The individual defendants are charged with giving the fourth, The Central Securities Corporation, favored treatment in collecting payment of delinquent bonds issued by the cities of Gary, Hammond and East Chicago.

The defendants, besides the corporation, are Edwin H. Dickmeyer, president and general manager of the corporation since 1933. Prior to that he was a vice-president of a Fort Wayne bank and manager of its securities subsidiary.

Louis F. Conter of Crown Point, Lake county treasurer in 1937-38. Edward L. Reil of East Chicago, deputy county treasurer before and during Conter's administration. The indictments were handed to Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick yesterday but the defendants' names were withheld temporarily.

Fleming said that bond has been set at $5,000 on each indictment and that the men were expected to post it soon — possibly today — in federal court here.

Conter was reported as being in Florida.

The district attorney said the act forbids dealers in stocks and bonds from using the mails to perpetrate a fraud. He alleged that the three men and the corporation worked together to redeem and get cash from the former county treasurer for bonds held by customers and that this payment constituted a preference. Fleming said Dickmeyer's customers got part of the money back while other bondholders got nothing.

The investigation extended over several months. It was conducted by Fleming; Luther M. Swygert of Hammond and Alex M. Campbell of South Bend, assistant district attorneys from Washington.

Fleming said the case probably would be tried at Fort Wayne in late winter or early spring.

She is taking care of Elaine Flory, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles D. Flory, while the parents have an evening out.

College Employment Bureau Helps Students Find Jobs

From raking leaves to "staying with the kids" in the evening while the folks go out, Lawrence college students are ready to do all kinds of parttime work to help pay for their education.

The Lawrence college employment bureau, directed by Dean John S. Millis, right now has more applications from students than jobs to offer them.

Since the beginning of the school term, the bureau has in about 50 instances found something for students, both men and women, to do.

Women students take care of children during afternoons and evenings, do secretarial work, and both men and women act as tutors.

For the fellows, there are such jobs as tending furnaces, shoveling snow, (when it comes) putting on the storm windows, washing, polishing, and driving cars, and general clean-up work.

There are about 50 Lawrence students registered in the college employment bureau. After football season is over, this number will increase for many of the football players are interested in obtaining parttime employment.

So the Government Takes Its Cut on Income, Criminal or Not

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The United States board of tax appeals handed down a decision on Oct. 8 in which this queer bureau assumed some of the authority of a criminal court by way of claiming for the federal treasury an income tax, plus appropriate penalties, on ransom paid for the release of a kidnapped citizen. The man thus found guilty by the board of tax appeals of kidnapping never was prosecuted for the crime. The board is supposed to be as neutral as a court, but actually it occupies the position of a collection agency and has an interest in cases which come before it.

The defendant in this case was Murray Humphreys, a well-known Chicago racketeer of the Al Capone era and type, who, since repeal, has muscled his way into the dairy business in Chicago, where not a few well-known brigands have retired to more or less conventional commerce. Humphreys was one of many gangsters indicted in the cleanup of Chicago, which was accomplished by the intelligence unit of the treasury but which often has been erroneously credited to the FBI. He had been a bootlegger and a power in the dry-cleaning racket and enjoyed, in the peculiar social scale of Chicago, a substantial reputation as a hoodlum.

Indicted in June, 1933, he fled to Mexico and returned in October, 1934, to plead guilty and receive a sentence of 18 months in prison plus a fine of $5,000. He served 14 months, receiving the usual discount for polite behavior.

The criminal aspects of the tax evasion having been concluded, the government still maintained its claim for the unpaid taxes and penalties. The unreported income included money received from the dry-cleaning racket and $50,000 paid for the release of Robert G. Fitchie, president of the Chicago milk wagon drivers' union—a historic case. Fitchie, then 74 years old, was kidnapped on Dec. 21, 1931, and was released two days later, after Steve C. Sumner, the secretary-treasurer of the union, also an old man, had left $50,000 on the seat of a parked car. Sumner later identified Humphreys as one of the men who took the $50,000 from the car and further said he recognized Humphreys' voice as the one which, in several telephone conversations, negotiated the ransom.

In reaching its verdict of guilty of kidnapping against Humphreys the board of tax appeals took into consideration evidence shown by Humphreys' bank accounts and gave weight to the testimony of Sumner against Humphreys' claim that the kidnapping was a fake. In this connection it should be noted that the nature of many labor unions is such that it would not be thought improper of a union official to dip into the treasury to ransom a kidnapped brother official. This obviously invites officials to go absent for a few days and to help themselves to the members' money in amounts to be reported as ransom payments.

The board of tax appeals decided that Sumner was an honest witness and said, "We are convinced that his identification of petitioner (Humphreys) as the man who took the $50,000 from the automobile is correct."

It often has been urged that in the cases of criminals who report income obtained by illegal methods the rate of tax should be much higher than that provided for legal income. Court decisions have been discouraging, however, on the ground that this would constitute an abuse of the intention of the income tax amendment and the revenue act. The intention is to tax income, not to punish crime, and the consequence of all this is that the income of a criminal who admits his criminality in his return is taxable at the same rate as that of an honest, useful citizen.

In the final decision of this case the United States government becomes the major beneficiary of a criminal act whose victim, whether Fitchie or the union treasury, has no financial redress. The government takes its regular cut of the $50,000 plus a penalty of 50 per cent of that tax for Humphreys' failure to declare and pay, but not as a penalty for the actual kidnapping. By the government's own decision it is helping itself to money extorted from an innocent party. The treasury has no intention—in fact, no right—to return such money to the original victim.

Time to Congratulate

Before the Post-Crescent officially closes the campaign it wishes to comply with the chivalrous American custom of submitting its congratulations.

First of all, it congratulates the true and gallant Willkie. No plumed knight, no mail-fisted crusader, ever led a cause with more complete devotion. Never was a leader greater in defeat.

And we congratulate those countless men and women, warm of heart for their country and its magnificent traditions, who battled for the great cause against adroit political machines and unconscionable spending of public funds.

We particularly congratulate these political workers because of their just anger at the misleading of millions of good Americans through the use of wisps of hay just as horses are misled to get them into the corral.

We congratulate the American people for their great fortune in living in a country where the sorest differences of opinion are decided by the ballot box instead of a resort to savagery. We could congratulate them more had they been able to see how essential it is to preserve that government of theirs in every respect in order to be sure of its civilization. But we can congratulate them sufficiently by reminding them that in Mr. Roosevelt's election Darkness has not completely descended although twilight has, and that the forces of justice, now prepared in full battle array and with unbeatable leadership, will yet march to victory.

And we congratulate the people of America doubly because it is unlikely they will hear anything in the next four years from the White House about "driving the money changers from the Temple." The Temple is already so completely sold out to money changers that even a hand hold on the lightning rod or a toe-hold on a window sill brings a good price.

We congratulate the Great Tradition for living 150 years through tempests of ambition and hypocrisy before it was stabbed in the back.

We congratulate the makers of patent medicines, elixirs, salves, cordials, ointments and perfumed oils, for without them how could the Great Voice have been kept in shape and what would be left if the voice lost its silvery cadences?

And finally we congratulate the 26 million who voted for the victor since they will be rescued through the concern and friendship of the 22 million on the other side who will persist in this campaign of education and enlightenment until the overwhelming majority acknowledge the right.

Galloping Gerie Lies Down in the River

The bridge at Tacoma built with federal funds and completed last July has crashed as though hit by a score of ton bombs. Nothing so young ever collapsed so much like the one horse shay that was a hundred years old to a day when it went up in dust.

Galloping Gerie they called this bridge because even those who had never seen an engineering college could observe something screwy about it as it swayed, shimmed and hula-hulaed in a mild breeze.

The country is dotted with Galloping Gerties designed by political engineers whose single qualification for a great construction job was a forward nod of the head every time some candidate for office found a place to drop a few million in the likelihood of so emotionalizing the voters they might not see through his threadbare qualifications for office.

But Galloping Gerie entered for first place. She wants to be the most complete piece of wastage in this era of war alarms and dumb nonsense.

But weep no more, good people, for Galloping Gerie is a great blessing down there in the river, much more of a blessing than for the few weeks she hung onto the stone abutments while people risked their bones upon her. The cost of putting her in place originally was only about seven millions which is still represented by bonds. But the bonds are owned in this country which makes Gerie something of a gift. Gerie's graceful act in flopping into the river gives us another chance to build another Gerie, issue more bonds owned in the country and thus secure another gift, so we may keep the Christmas spirit all the year round.

Some sort of medal of honor should be devised for the engineers whose works collapse swiftly.

How Dare One Criticize?

A lady writes the editor that after attending political rallies in the past campaign she has concluded that democracy is whittled away to a "thin shell." There is no doubt that her observation is true. The question is whether or not the whittling process has taken place evenly, in which case the Republic is doomed, or whether the observer happened to touch upon a single point where the protecting shell had become worn thin.

Certainly in the case of Mrs. Fain, a Connecticut woman, our government at Washington is beginning to see eye to eye with the Gestapo. To understand exactly what happened we print in full Mrs. Fain's letter addressed to the President after his "stab in the back" address in Virginia:

"Dear Mr. President: Will you permit me to express my sincere regret for much of the substance of your recent radio address and that delivered at the University of Virginia?"

"I have voted for you twice, am in sympathy with your humanitarian and social objectives, as well as sharing your sympathy with the Allies in their struggle. But the tone of both addresses seems to me to be calculated to build up a psychosis which may drive us into a war in which we could be of little help to Europe, but in which we might lose our own liberty as well as the lives of our youth. Believe me, with great respect, Sincerely yours."

If Mrs. Fain made any error in her temperate letter it was in believing the Great Voice when it invited the people of the United States to write to the White House concerning any grievance they had. For a little later she received a letter on the stationery of the Department of Justice signed by no less a personage than the great O. John Rogge, assistant attorney general, couched in the dreadful words of implied accusation:

"In reply to your letter of June 14, 1940 by reference from the President, concerning your views of the war in Europe, please be advised that the statements contained therein have been carefully noted by the department."

Fearful that she may have inadvertently failed in respect to great authority Mrs. Fain wrote for a copy of the letter which she had originally sent the President and received a photostatic copy of it on which was stamped, "Criminal Division, June 19, 1940. Received. Under this stamp was another indicating official action by the Criminal Division.

Under the ordinary processes of democracy Mrs. Fain's original letter would have been answered by one of the President's numerous secretaries. Instead it was sent to our equivalent of the Gestapo. Mrs. Fain's letter merited a reply as respectful and honest as the letter itself. Instead she received the ominous scowl of officialdom implied from the fact that the Department of Justice was keeping track of her through the same Criminal Division employed to pursue some of the most vicious elements in the country.

The government has thus warned all its people that when you write it you either say something nice and approving, or else.

Here certainly is a point where the shell of democracy has worn to transparency.

The Death of Azana

Manuel Azana, President of the Spanish Republic during the recent civil war in that land, is dead.

He was an unfortunate man because in a country steaming in the poisonous juices of hatred and falsehood he believed in genuine, patient, slow but truthful democracy.

How far removed he was from actuality may be understood by reading his appraisal at the hands of an American writer who at the time probably little dreamed of the flood of blood that was approaching Spain. She wrote:

"Azana is that rarity, a solitary Spaniard. Solitary in his life, solitary in his views, solitary in his manner. He walks through the Cortes which is clumped up into many groups, alone; he stands alone, hands close to his sides, face unreadable, an invisible, impassable vacuum around him."

Azana failed terribly because he tried to apply democracy to a people who were utterly unfit for it, uneducated to it, untrained for its responsibilities, and only aching for revenge and the opportunity to destroy. The opportunity came, and the poor misguided Spaniards destroyed, and were in turn destroyed.

Azana's voice, speaking the truth on the rare occasions when it was given the chance to speak at all, finally was stifled by the bitter men to whom the truth was an annoyance. The leader of democracy went into hiding to escape the guns of those who said they were fighting for democracy.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—The first problem President Roosevelt took under consideration immediately after election was how to bring Republican forces into the government in order to effect greater national unity and heal election wounds.

Last winter, Roosevelt invited Frank Knox, vice presidential running-mate of Landon's, into the cabinet as secretary of the navy; and Henry L. Stimson, who had a long record in Republican cabinets, as his secretary of war. Roosevelt would like to do something like this today in order to give representation to the opposition party at a time of national emergency.

One suggestion made along this line is appointment of Senator McNary, defeated for vice president, as secretary of agriculture. McNary and Roosevelt have been excellent personal friends for many years, and Roosevelt frequently has called in the Republican senate leader for advice. McNary also has been a leader of the farm bloc and was an author of the famous McNary-Haugen farm bill.

Also discussed within the inner circle has been whether Roosevelt should offer an administration post to Wendell Willkie—possibly the job of coordinator of national defense.

However, close advisers warn Roosevelt that Willkie is temperamental, difficult to work with, and has never experienced the political give and take of public office. Therefore it seems more likely that McNary rather than Willkie would be invited into the official family if any Republican is to be included. At any rate, Roosevelt is almost certain to invite Republicans in for series of conferences of some kind aiming toward greater political cooperation.

CAMPAIGN WIVES

Wives played a unique role in the campaign just concluded—Mrs. Willkie, Mrs. Roosevelt, and several other important political ladies among them Mrs. Farley.

Mrs. Willkie, of course, was constantly at her husband's side. Mrs. Roosevelt was not.

Probably one reason for this was the fact that privately Mrs. Roosevelt never wanted her husband to run for a third term. She felt that a third term would be full of headaches, that no president could weather the next four years without a terrific toll upon his health, and that her husband would be sure to step out of office at the end of twelve years a far less popular man than he is today.

Before the Chicago convention, therefore, she did not lift a finger for the president's renomination, but tried to discourage it. After the nomination, naturally she was 100 per cent for her husband, and her absence from the political arena did not mean that she would not have been on the job had she been needed.

In previous campaign years one lady from the Roosevelt family always has accompanied the president, sometimes Mrs. Roosevelt, sometimes Betsy, the divorced wife of Jimmy Roosevelt, and sometimes his daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger. This year Roosevelt's trips were supposed to be for defense inspection, until near the end, so no ladies were present.

Mrs. Roosevelt continued with her own busy life and kept out of sight as much as possible. She had no effect whatever upon the election. But Mrs. Willkie was a tremendous asset to her husband, undoubtedly won votes for him.

With her husband bidding for the biggest job of his life, Mrs. Willkie valiantly came to his support. Her demure charm, and the unflinching manner in which she faced barrages of eggs and vegetables, helped increase the large popular vote rolled up by her husband.

BESS FARLEY

Another lady who played a behind-the-scenes role in this election was Mrs. James A. Farley. Her influence was felt more in the pre-nomination days, but at all times it was potent. Jim Farley is one of the greatest family men in the United States. He adores his three children, and there isn't anything in the world he wouldn't do for Bess, his wife. She was one of the chief reasons why Jim got out of the cabinet and turned his extraordinary genius to a business career.

It was on March fourth, at the cabinet dinner, that Bess Farley really boiled over against Franklin Roosevelt. Just a few days before, Ernest Lindley had published his article stating that Roosevelt opposed Jim Farley as his successor because of the political handicaps in the path of any Catholic candidate. So to her partner at the dinner, Bess Farley let off steam against Roosevelt to such an extent that efforts were immediately taken by various cabinet members to patch up a peace between Roosevelt and the postmaster general.

What Mrs. Farley said at that time was that if Jim could not get the nomination, he would at least control the convention, and he would see to it that Roosevelt would not be renominated. It will be recalled that Mrs. Farley went out to Chicago at the start of the convention, and it was about this time that Jim's opposition to the president stiffened.

In the recent campaign, it got around that Bess Farley was wearing a Willkie button. This was incorrect. However, she made no effort at dinner parties to conceal her views, and if Jim had followed them he never would have pitched in to carry New York State for Roosevelt in the energetic way he did.

ROOSEVELT CHILDREN

Among the Roosevelt children, Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, ex-wife of Jimmy, was a staunch supporter of the president, who has always been extremely fond of her. However, Elliott's ex-wife, now Mrs. Curtin Winsor, contributed $5000 to defeat her former father-in-law.

Probably the best campaign among the Roosevelt children was done by Franklin Jr., whose wife is Ethel duPont, daughter of Eugene duPont. The far flung duPont family contributed around $50,000 to the Willkie campaign, but Ethel remained loyal to her in-laws.

Franklin's speeches were of a rather naive, amateurish nature, but they endeared him tremendously to his father. Franklin would start his speeches in most formal vein, carefully referring to his father as "the President." But when heckled from the side, he usually forgot his dignity and sometimes shouted, "my old man's a great guy."

Young Philip Willkie, on the other hand, kept strictly out of politics and stuck to his knitting as a graduate student of Harvard. This may have been because the elder Willkie focused some unfortunate attention upon his son last June when he called upon Princeton authorities on the long distance telephone and berated them for forty minutes because Philip had failed to graduate from the university.

This was just about the time of Willkie's nomination, and he insinuated that Princeton had flunked his son in order to embarrass him politically. Willkie's complaint was made to Professor Raymond J. Sontag, head of the history department, whose secretary took down Willkie's conversation on an extension telephone. The transcript still is in the files at Princeton, where professors who have read it describe it as a "colorful document."

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—If you don't think a lot of water has run under the old verities since the last draftees went off to camp, just listen to what the boys in those days (the summer and fall of 1917) were talking about when they mustered in for their first introduction to squads—right, squads—left, hoo-um-um-um!

Stinnett

ing of such chaps as Cicotte and the fielding and batting of Eddie Collins and Shoeless Joe Jackson, took the World Series from the overconfident New York Giants, winning the first, second, fifth and sixth games.

Stocks and bonds were doing a nose-dive to new lows and the Wall Streeters were screaming. . . . There were investigations being started of war profiteers. . . . Lenin and Trotsky were the big shots of the Russian revolution and Bolshevik was a new word. . . . Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Treat returned from France and predicted that the World War would end in the fall of 1918.

Glenn Warner (nobody called him "Pop" then) stirred up a pigskin hornet's nest by announcing that football was not as rough as it used to be. . . . Fuel to the football game was added when Army called off its annual classic with the Navy.

No G-Men Then

The "federal men" (whoever heard of G-men then) rounded up a slew of I. W. W.'s. . . . Dresses were down to the ankle and the "modern maidens' shoes laced as high as the hem of her skirt or she was out of style. . . . The waltz and the naughty "Bunny Hug" were all the ballroom fashion. . . . The Castles set the pace on the hardwood. . . . Jazz was a brand-new word and "flapper" was just beginning to have a new meaning.

Wheat was selling for $1.18 cents on the Chicago Board of Trade and farmers in the dust bowl (of the 1930's) were planting every foot of ground they could find. . . . John McCormack was a sell-out at Carnegie Hall and spending all his spare time selling Liberty Bonds.

Theda Bara was knocking them into the aisles in "Cleopatra." . . . Mary Pickford was America's Sweetheart in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." . . . Douglas Fairbanks was sending the boys in khaki home happy with "The Man from Painted Post." . . . Pauline Frederick, Marguerite Clark and Sessue Hawakaya were packing them in almost as thick as William S. Hart. . . . Especially if they had with them on the bill a two-reeler with that funny little fellow, Charlie Chaplin.

Another Tyrone Power

Tyrone Power (Sr.) and Florence Reed had them by the heels with the tuncful "Chu Chin Chow." . . . Raymond Hitchcock, Leon Errol and Irene Bordoni were doing just as well with "Hitchy-Koo." . . . Peggy Wood was breaking hearts in "Maytime." . . . John and Lionel Barrymore and Constance Collier were making Broadway history with "Peter Ibbotson." . . . Every night at Yaphank a bunch of the boys would gather around a piano-player named Irving Berlin and sing themselves hoarse. . . . And soldiers and sailors in uniform were admitted half price to see the Rialto hit, "The Man Who Came Back."

Joss Willard was the "heavy," weight champ and announced he'd defend his title against anybody, but the proceeds of the bout must go to the Red Cross. . . . Francis X. O'Rourke got a furlough to play a 36-hole golf match against "Chick" Evans and won.

The big scandals in the army were that shoes didn't fit; there weren't uniforms, blankets or rifles enough to go around; and there was a shortage of machine guns and ammunition. . . . War atrocity stories had the boys (and girls) gasping.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Well, anyhow, it seems good to get back to a situation in which most of the people getting jumped on and battered are playing football and not arguing politics.

At that, the fights on the football gridirons will seem pretty tame for a while compared to those we all went through on the air, speakers' platforms, street corners, homes and smoking cars.

Thousands of Americans must have lost their amateur standing as fighters, football players, left-handed pitchers and catch-as-catch-can wrestlers during the presidential campaign. If they didn't act like professionals I never saw any.

The unity idea is going over pretty well, from all reports, although you can't tell from a three-day run. Fewer people were banged up in the unity drive yesterday than the day before, which is encouraging.

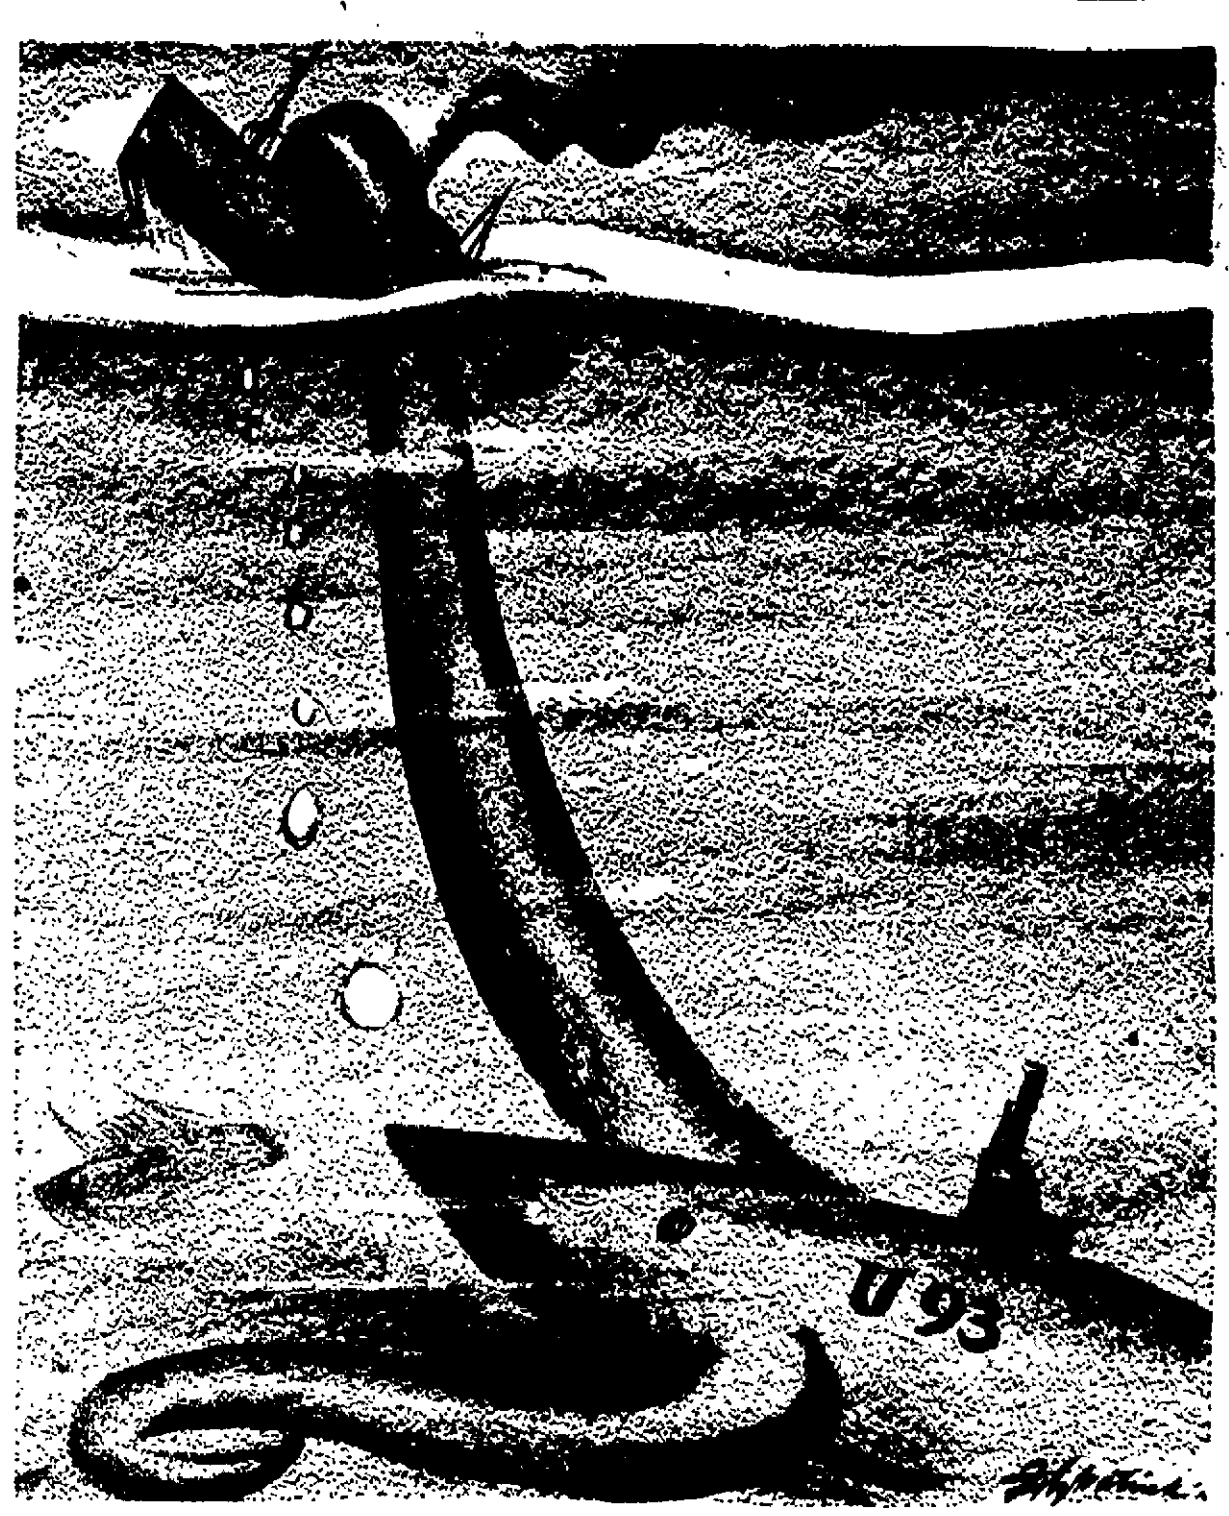

I see they're going to investigate the unraveling of that PWA suspension bridge out in Tacoma, just to clear up any thoughts that maybe the politicians put in cigars instead of bolts or that the PWA workmen didn't know the bridge was supposed to be a permanent thing anyhow.

One to Another

St. Gallen, Switzerland—(7)—During the first World War two young soldiers, a Swiss sergeant and a German private, met casually while on frontier duty and talked far into the night.

A few weeks ago, the Swiss sergeant, now an officer, found himself on the German frontier on exactly the same spot.

He was introduced to a high officer of the German army and each immediately recognized the other as the sentry of the last war.

And in the Waters Under the Sea

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—About this time two years ago Republicans were filling the air with confident predictions that the day of the LaFollettes in Wisconsin politics was over. The landslide defeat of one of the political brothers was the evidence on which their predictions were based, and a majority of non-partisan observers were agreed that the evidence looked formidable.

One Republican newspaperman at that time, however, gave warning. The LaFollettes had been through other rough times during a long family history, he pointed out, and they could not be counted out too easily.

So today Wisconsin sends a LaFollette back to Washington for another term. When Young Bob's new term has expired, there will have been a LaFollette answering roll in the United States senate for more than 40 years, a record unparalleled in United States history.

And the Republican editor, a prophet unheeded in his day, was right. Republicans lost what will in all likelihood prove to be their best chance when they failed to retire Senator LaFollette last Tuesday. This column declared before the election that it was likely that his senate tenure would end upon his own volition. That judgment stands. LaFollette could survive, if there are a few Republicans who can say with any confidence that he will ever be beaten. The potency of the LaFollette name has again been demonstrated. The young men are not yet through.

Consider the case of Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state, who got more votes than any other Republican except Willkie in Wisconsin.

Zimmerman in the last three elections in which he has been a candidate for anything has shown that he is not only adept at getting votes, but that he is the best vote-getter of the Wisconsin Republicans. In the presidential primary last spring, in the state primary this fall, and in the general election, "Zim" topped any other party man in sight.

Zimmerman could have taken it easy during the recent election. He saw that his prospects were excellent. He could have saved his money and energy, as did some of his colleagues on the Republican ticket. He saw that his Progressive and Democratic opposition was exceedingly weak. But he hit the highways during most of two months, apparently intent upon rolling up the highest vote possible.

In the minds of many, that determination to tap the ticket means something. He'll narrow edge will turn Republican eyes elsewhere in 1942 and the governor has already said in at least one newspaper interview that he doesn't want a third term which is why a lot of people are showing interest in Zimmerman's vote totals.

The present secretary of state is one of the few governors of Wisconsin who was not reelected in modern times. By a twist of political circumstances he was discarded by the Republicans who had adopted him, and the Progressives who had reared him, with the result that he went down to defeat before Walter J. Kohler. The next election may give him the opportunity for vindication some of his friends desire for him.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

MICROSCOPICAL LIVESTOCK

Most of the stereotyped propaganda which comes by the basketful in every mail is pretty dreary reading. But from a bit distributed by some "Council" or other (usually that name suggests that proprietary interests are behind it) I plucked this paragraph the other day:

Although exposure, exhaustion, dissipation, insufficient and improper food, and unhygienic surroundings which lower the general level of health tend to make one more susceptible to colds.

You see, the bright young woman who composed the piece had to get over the idea of "lowered resistance" without saying it in the hackneyed way.

... even healthy noses and throats harbor many varieties of microscopical livestock such as staphylococci, streptococci, and pneumococci, it was stated.

People have been led to believe that colds are simply a congestion of the nose and throat. But, say the medical scientists, colds are really an acute infection in which congestion of the nose and throat is only one symptom.

Just who the "medical scientists" are the bright young woman does not reveal, but unless she has them all wrong they are regular enough "medical scientists" for the staphylococci, pneumococci and streptococci are more like vegetables than like "livestock," and no one has deduced any evidence that such germs, harbored in nose and throat by a normal or healthy person, can or do ever cause any illness in that person.

As for the rest of the explanation or elucidation of "colds" attributed to the "medical scientists," there is no particular evidence to support any of the notions set forth as predisposing or contributing causes of infection. All that is just this season's reshuffle of the hackneyed theories which were current thirty or forty years ago.

Any one fairly well informed in bacteriology should know that strains of staphylococci, streptococci and pneumococci are usually found in the nose or throat of the normal person, and that these normal inhabitants of the nose or throat are generally non-pathogenic, that is, they do not cause disease in any circumstance.

The idea that any one can carry in or on his body the makings of a specific infectious disease and develop the disease himself if or when his susceptibility happens to be increased, or if you prefer, when his immunity or "resistance" happens to be lowered by some such circumstance as fatigue or worry or insufficient or improper food or dampness or draft or rotten weather, is utterly absurd and only a self-made "medical scientist" would have the nerve to offer it to a lay audience.

Don't worry about any pneumococci or streptococci your nose or throat may harbor all the time. Rather consider how to dodge the chance of running against Rep. Joshua L. Johns, who buried him in an avalanche of votes. Tuesday, Kresky gave up a senate seat in which he had made himself one of the best known of the state's lawmakers, and a spot from which he could have grown into a position of influence and power in the Progressive party. It is now doubtful that he will ever come back to the legislature, for which he never had any real taste.

bacteria that come your way in the conversational spray of the scoundrel who has "a slight cold" and insists on sharing it with you. Such germs are in the pink and ready to do their damndest if they gain a foothold in your nose or throat.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nervous Spells

Since starting school my 16-year-old daughter has had nervous spells that keep her out of school for days at a time. What do you advise? (Mrs. P. W. L.)

Answer—I have no idea what the trouble can be. You should place her under medical care.

Wheat Germ

Do you think it is all right for a person who had stomach ulcer some years ago to eat raw wheat germ? (A. S.)

Answer—Yes, provided the wheat germ is fresh—not more than two or three weeks old. Cooking destroys only part of the vitamin B complex in wheat germ, however, so cook it if you can't take it raw. The less cooking the better.

Fancy Sugar

If a person takes some dextrose before a hard physical effort will it increase his endurance? (H. R.)

Answer—It may, but not more effectively than would the same amount of ordinary sugar in any form, as in candy, or sweetened beverage, milk, fruit juice, cake sweet chocolate.

Unbidden Guests

Have you any literature dealing with such pests as cockroaches and bedbugs? (J. C. T.)

Answer—Yes, a booklet "Unbidden guests" takes 'em all for a ride. For copy send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, South, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Nov. 13, 1915

A resolution calling for a bond issue of $300,000 for road improvement was to be introduced at a meeting of the county board the following Tuesday.

The Eagle Manufacturing company had refused an order from a representative of the Russian government for 200 large traction engines destined for convoy work under war conditions.

The Outagamie County Transit company, a subsidiary of the Pettibone store, closed its season that day because of the approach of cold weather and frozen roads.

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Nov. 8, 1930

Because they had not been defeated in two years, the Green Bay Packers expected one of the largest crowds ever to witness a "pro" game to fill Wrigley field's seats the following day to see the Chicago Bears try again to break the victory streak.

Dedication of Legion park at Kaukauna was to take place Sunday afternoon with Frank Schneller of Neenah as the principal speaker.

Rivets now are being made loaded with gunpowder so that they will explode when heated, flattening out on the inside.

Installation of window forms probably will start next week. The inside tile also has been laid in the gymnasium. Remer and Marold, who held the plumbing contract, are about ready to start their work. D.A.R. Work for Indians Is Described to Economics Club Menasha — Mrs. H. W. Ridgeway, Rosendale, state chairman of the Indian welfare committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, speaking at the Economics club meeting in the Elisha D. Smith library Friday afternoon, on "Indian Welfare in Wisconsin" told the group what the D. A. R. has and is doing in its welfare project for Winnebago Indians.

Mrs. Ridgeway prefaced her talk with a brief history of the Chippewa, Stockbridge, Oneida, Menominee, Winnebago and Potawatomi Indian tribes in Wisconsin. She told the group what is being done by the rehabilitation program of the federal government in an effort to restore the Indian so that he may be self-sustaining and enjoy a satisfying life. She told the club members of the allotment act of 1881 which allowed Indians to sell their land. At one time, Indians owned 155,000,000 acres of land in the United States. In 1938, they owned but 25,000,000 acres.

Self-Government Plan The speaker discussed the work of the Great Lakes Agency in northern Wisconsin; of the self governing plan under the Wheeler-Howard act. Indians will be allowed to incorporate for business purposes. Scholarships will be granted to boys and girls who wish to further their education. Homes are being rebuilt and other reconstruction projects are being conducted. Home economics programs, agricultural extension work and other projects are aiding considerable in the rehabilitation work.

The public may help, Mrs. Ridgeway said, by understanding the Indian and his problem and by promoting better understanding toward him so that he may be self-reliant and take his place with the white man in the world.

Miss Edna Robertson, guest soloist for the afternoon, sang three selections, "Invocation to the Sun God," an Indian lullaby, "Beware of the Hawk My Baby" and "I Hear a Forest Praying." Miss Ruby Hart was her accompanist.

Menasha to Observe American Education Week With Program

Menasha — American Education week will be observed in the Menasha public schools next week. While no programs will be held during school hours, parents have been invited to visit classes and observe the regular school work. A special program will be sponsored by the Menasha Education association at 7:45 next Wednesday night at the Menasha High school auditorium at which Edgar G. Doudna will speak on "How Good Are Our Schools?"

Education week grew out of the World war which revealed that 25 percent of the men examined in the draft were illiterate, 20 percent were physically unfit, and many were foreign-born and had little understanding of American life. In the fall of 1920 thousands of schools were closed for want of teachers, lost through the war. Members of the American Legion conferred with educators to plan a program for the extension of education and the first American Education week was observed in 1921.

The theme of the week this year is "Education for the Common Defense." Daily topics have been selected for each day of the week. They are enriching spiritual life, strengthening civic loyalties, financing public education, developing human resources, safeguarding natural resources, perpetuating individual liberties, and building economic security.

Beauty and You

By Patricia Lindsay

PREPARE FOR PARTY—Joan Leslie of Warner Bros. is preparing herself for a gay week-end party. While her hands are being bleached and softened by a special masque cream under the gloves, she relaxes with a book.

Some women are fortunate enough to have sufficient natural lubrication of their skin so nippy weather does not dry their hands and face. But most women find skin chapping during the first chilly spell, and lubricating creams or lotions become essential.

It is surprising how quickly hands respond to a little pampering. The skin becomes smoother and whiter, cuticle ruly and nails stronger. Massaging hands with a softening cream or lotion at least every night, and during the day if it is possible, keeps the skin from chapping and growing red. Cuticle will always scuff if the skin is too dry or if it has been chapped, and nothing is more irritating than to have ragged hangnails. One's fingers even seem to blunder in the work they must do!

The woman who has done everything to beautify American women's hands (she is known by her famous nail polishes and preparations) tells me that her hand masque has increased steadily in sales. Women are at last realizing that even very neglected hands can be massaged and manicured into presentable condition on short notice, providing they are given facials such as your face gets.

First a good cream cleansing, then a sudsy scrubbing with soap and water paying special attention to the nails. A few minutes with the right implements are enough to give your nails a manicure and to paint them an exquisite shade to harmonize with what you plan to wear. During the manicure any scuffed cuticle is cared for with oil and removing lotion so your last step is to smooth and bleach the neglected skin. This is done by applying a special hand masque which is rich and creamy and soothing. Again around your cuticle you drop a bit of nail oil and then slip into fresh cotton gloves (sold especially for hand treatment) and relax for a few moments.

During this time you could lie at a beauty angle—you know, head lower than the rest of the body and feet up very high—so your face will be beautified by a fresh flow of blood to your head. Or you may sit and read the evening paper while your hands are turning into things of beauty!

Don't Play For Break In Long Suit

BY ELY CULBERTSON

If bridge players would master one single department of play, the percentage of fulfilled contracts would increase by leaps and bounds. I refer to the department of safety plays. This is by all odds the least understood and appreciated phase of bridge. Why, I can't say. There is nothing abstruse, nor even greatly complicated, about safety plays. Indeed, experts find them fascinating. And a thorough knowledge of these plays prevents the sort of tragedy that overtook the declarer in the following deal:

Rubber bridge.
North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 6 4 3
♥ A 7 5
♦ A K 4
♣ K 6 J

WEST
♠ None
♥ Q 8 6 2
♦ 9 6 5 3
♣ Q J 9 8 5

EAST
♠ K J 9
♥ J 10 9
♦ 10 4 2
♣ A 10 7 3

SOUTH
♠ A 10 8 7 5 2
♥ K 4 3
♦ K 8 7
♣ A 2

The bidding:
North East South West
1 no trump Pass 3 spades Pass
4 spades Pass 5 spades Pass

West opened the club queen. The king was smothered by East and declarer ruffed the club return. Declarer's problem was now clear cut: A heart loser would be unavoidable, hence it was vital to hold the defenders to one trump trick. With ten trumps in the combined hands, this looked easy. Declarer flipped out his spade ace, and the sound contract folded its tent and stole away. The defenders gleefully collected two trumps and a heart trick.

Granting that declarer ran into a bad trump break, there was absolutely no excuse for the loss of this contract. It was impossible to lose two trump tricks, if the proper play had been used.

After ruffing East's club return, declarer should enter dummy and lead a low trump toward his own hand. If East follows suit, that is proof that West cannot hold the three missing trumps. But East may hold them, and to cover that possibility, declarer must play the ten on East's nine. If West wins with the jack, what of it? The suit has now been found to break, and declarer's ace must drop the king, which is now the only outstanding trump.

If, on the low trump lead from dummy, East shows out, declarer naturally puts up the ace and leads back toward the queen, trapping West's jack.

Most safety plays merely increase the chances of success. This one guaranteed success.

My Neighbor Says—

To insure a succession of blossoms from bulb plants raised indoors during the winter months, start the new bulbs every two weeks.

Mince tart is made delicious deserts. Bake pie crusts in shallow pans. When ready to serve fill with cooked mince meat. Sprinkle with grated cheese and heat until cheese has browned.

Add a tablespoon of flour to creamed butter and sugar before adding milk, when making a cake. This coats the fat particles and keeps the mixture from curdling.

Word of caution: If you are not going to wear your new nose promptly, rinse them carefully in warm water. This will prolong their wearing qualities.

But if the introduction took place when the A's were hosts, the N's should have been introduced to them first. On neutral ground introductions are made according to the natural sequence in which people are standing. Nearest first, farthest away last!

Answer to Act. Two: This gesture is completely casual. Cigarettes are always offered first to whoever is nearest. This might even be to a man first, if he were next to host and women across the room. If they stand at practically an equal distance, the cigarette should of course be offered to the other women before his wife, and to the men last.

Strangers Sometimes Speak
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong to speak to a man to whom I have not been introduced? I see him alone in church almost every Sunday, and I would like to speak to him because I am alone too, and I know it's not the happiest situation. But may a woman speak to a man who is a fellow church member without having been introduced?

Answer: Since you both go to the same church, and you see him every week, you might say good morning to him as you leave church. A week or two later you might venture on the weather. "It's a nice day, isn't it?" or "It's too bad it's raining." What to say next—if anything—depends upon what he says.

Wide Brimmed Hats In The Evening
Dear Mrs. Post: Small hats are very unbecoming to me and I prefer to wear a wide-brimmed hat. But some one tells me that the wide-brimmed hats are not suitable after six o'clock. Is this true?

Answer: At present they happen to be very much in fashion with dinner dresses. The only objection to them is that a large brim is uncomfortable for dancing.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you want to pick a hobby which is full of fun and can lead to many extra dollars in pin money, follow Harold's suggestion below. His hobby also unites both husband and wife in a common avocation which has many valuable educational by-products besides the money you win. But don't expect to be a big leaguer at the start. Moreover, if you advertisers wish to test your copywriters, see how well they can fare when they all match wits on a national contest.

CASE S-124: Harold B., aged 25, is a former student of mine.

"Following your advice to us in your Business Psychology class," he said, "I decided to try some prize contests as a means of learning how to write short, snappy letters and advertising copy with a punch to it. I won a few minor prizes the first six months, and then I had the good fortune to get a third prize of $500 in a national contest."

"Now I am a confirmed contest fan. I subscribe to a contest magazine regularly and my wife works with me. We find it is a lot of fun and an educational hobby."

"Since both of us enjoy it, it also serves as a common interest and an extra bond to hold us together. Besides, that $500 enabled me to get married, and we are now banking our contest winnings for our savings account."

"Dr. Crane, why don't you tell more people about this profitable hobby. It certainly beats stamp collecting and such avocations."

DIAGNOSIS:

Contesting is no longer child's play or a juvenile recreation. The amount of money paid out each year in prizes runs into millions. Sometimes the prizes are so tempting that even professional authors and paid advertising copywriters try for the rewards. A first prize of $1,000 per year as long as you live, for instance, should tempt almost every American.

When I was first married, I took a year off to write short stories. During the last half of that year, Mrs. Crane and I got interested in prize contests. We worked them diligently and submitted entries in scores of them. I would usually write the 50-word or 100-word letter and she would dress up our entry and give it an artistic touch.

Contests Are Great Fun
We not only shared a stimulating hobby, thereby, and one which has many educational by-products, but we kept improving in the size of the prizes which we won till we finally rated two first prizes of $1,000 apiece. We earned more on contesting those last six months than I did writing short stories the first half of that year.

We would be considered pivers, however, compared to many professional contestants who submit hundreds of entries every year. One girl stenographer in Indiana, for example, won something like $25,000 in her first three or four years, and some contest fans average one prize every day in the year.

Maybe many of these prizes are small, such as $1 or possibly $5, while others may consist of a crate of oranges or a case of tuna fish, but they are worth while.

Confessing Teaches Literary Compression

In my courses on the psychology of advertising and selling, I often assign the students the job of writing contest entries. When you can write a strong letter of 100 words which contains almost 200 words full of ideas, you have learned compression and terseness of style.

One of the best ways to learn how to write sterling advertising copy is to become a professional contestant.

Several magazines are now published monthly for contest fans. I use them as collateral texts for my advertising courses. They list the actual prize-winning letters so you can see what the judges consider unusual letters. They are also full of valuable suggestions to advertising copywriters.

Harold has already pointed out the value of this hobby in uniting husband and wife in a constructive avocation. Send me a dime and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope if you wish my bulletin on "How to Win Prize Contests."

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on Psychological problems. Write him, in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and readers' names are never published.

Easier to Divorce Wife Than Cast Off Lady Love

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am the secretary and assistant to a very prosperous doctor and have been for a number of years. He has been very wonderful to me in the past, giving me a handsome salary and taking me everywhere he went. Before the war we went to Europe. Last year to Brazil. Now he has announced that he is going off alone and I will not stand for it. I have told him that I am going with him and we have had some stormy scenes, and in spite of this he is preparing to go alone. He has recently bought a plane, without my approval, and spends two or three days a week getting his flying hours when he should be in his office practicing medicine. I used to play golf with him, but now he will not even go to the course, so as I will not leave him I do not get to play. I have always walked in his private office, no matter who the patient was, but now he resents it and asks me to please knock before entering. This makes me suspicious of him and makes me feel that he is getting tired of me. And you know that any sane, sensible woman who has given the best years of her life to a man is not going to stand by and have some woman make a fool of him through flattery. He doesn't know it, but I have saved him several times from the claws of women.

I used to be beautiful and he did not think of anyone else. What would you advise me to do to get this irresponsible, crazy man to be like he used to be, confiding and trusting? I simply will not step out of the picture for another woman, no matter what I have to do, and I can do plenty, and I will. However, I would rather it did not come to an issue if it can be handled any other way. WORRIED.

Answer: I commend this letter to the careful perusal of all men who are under the delusion that free love is free, that only wives are tyrants, and that when they get tired of their love nests all they have to do will be spread their wings and fly away. A mistress can have a man far more under her thumb than a wife ever can, and it is a thousand times easier to get a divorce from a wife than it is to get rid of Lady Love.

If you have tears to shed, bewail this poor doctor with his pen. For what he has suffered from the henpecking of this strong and dominant woman who has managed him and his affairs through all these years; who has handled his money and his business and his practice; who has told him where he got on and where he got off; who has gone with him wherever he went; who has not even allowed him the privacy of seeing his patients alone nor as much liberty as a dog on a leash, is beyond all telling.

They say that the woman who takes the primrose path pays and pays, but the man also has to pay. And often when he has settled his score he is destitute of everything that makes life worth living.

And now the doctor wants to be free. The woman has lost her beauty. He chafes under her dictatorship. Perhaps there is another woman, younger and fairer. However it is, he is tired of her. But he has no more chance of escaping her than a convict on Devils Island has of getting free. "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." He will know all about that when he tries to break the bonds with which she has fettered him.

The woman knows her power. She knows that she can keep him with her threat to ruin his practice and smear his name by dragging their sordid romance into court, but one wonders why she wants to keep his body when his soul and heart have gone from her?

What happiness can she promise herself in forcing her companion-ship on one who hates and loathes her? She has even less to gain in such a situation than the discarded wife who has, at least, her husband's name.

Probably your husband's father would be extremely grateful to you and call down blessings on your head if you would leave him alone to stay where he is and live his own life, free and untrammelled by having to conform to the rules and regulations of your house.

Children always think they are conferring a great favor on their parents when they ask them to live with them, and that the old people should be perfectly happy just sitting around watching them, and that they should be grateful for being saved from being lonely.

Spiritual Courage Can Overcome Human Fears

BY ANGLO PATRI

Terror destroys energy and paralyzes will power and anyone under its influence is helpless under attack. That is why an enemy will make horrible noises and issue terrible threats in the fashion of the giant of the fairy tales. He knows the power of fear and uses it to the utmost.

The only weapon the human being has against this evil force is the spiritual one of courage. Evil is one kind of spiritual power, good is the other, and the good must be strong enough to subdue the evil through faith and in courage. How is one to hold to his faith and insure his courage?

Good health is a tremendous asset in such a struggle, and again, the spirit of the man is the basis of success. A strong determination to down worry and uphold faith harnessed to disciplined action will win the day. Wishing without working is an empty gesture that tends to weaken the wisher and leave him at the mercy of his enemy. A good appetite for simple food, a habit of restful sleep, a will to accomplish a task each day, are elements of health that are to be cultivated from wishing into action.

Don't Shrink from Name Calling
Then the mental attitude that sets the stage for courageous action must be cultivated as well. "I am not afraid," must be reiterated until it becomes set in the mind. What is there to be afraid of anyway? The greatest power anybody can wield is the spiritual power that insists upon its strength and announces its faith in action. Any healthy, intelligent human being has the makings for that and if he uses them he is quite as able as his enemy.

Don't be afraid of being called names for your pains. A name is only as strong as you make it. If you don't become scared at the name it can't hurt you, but if you are afraid of it and shrink into silence in awe of it you are beaten before you begin and your enemy has you in his pocket. All he had to do was use his breath, blow hard at you, and down you went.

Pioneers Were Unafraid
There's too much of that going on in the world. Men and women are afraid to speak their honest opinions lest they be labelled with ideas they hate and fear. That will not take us anywhere worth going. This country was built by men and women afraid of nothing. They faced hunger, cold, exile, hostile savages in their battle for freedom and they won. Their faith was stronger than their fear and they knew the quality of peace they wanted. It was none of the do-nothing, say-nothing sort that seems to be popular these days. It was the kind that said, "On this I stand, I am not afraid."

Nothing worth while having was ever won by silence and effortless acceptance. Nothing worth holding was ever maintained by idleness. Not to the strong in evil belongs the good of this earth but to the strong in spirit—to those who elect their cause and maintain it fearlessly.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Memory of the Moon

By Jeanne Bowman

Chapter 32

"You're sorry, in a way, that Taylor didn't sell," asked John.

"I'm sorry because, aside from me, no one wants this ranch as passionately as he does. Yet, I'd sooner lose it fighting, than have someone else save it for me," Constance said.

Raskhorne shook his head. "There's only one like you, Conchita. All right, dear, I'll stand by. Good luck."

Constance talked to Meg that afternoon because she had telephoned the commissary that she must have butter "immediately." No boy being present, Constance took it to the manager's house, carefully going to the kitchen door. "Come in," ordered Meg fretfully.

She was making cinnamon rolls. She flattened the raised dough with a malicious motion of the pin, dusted it with sugar and cinnamon, then began doting it with butter.

"I have to find something that fool boy will eat," she complained. "Off his feed he is, for the first time since his mother died."

Constance sat on a high stool as Meg rolled the dough. "Hope you'll look in on Peter while I'm away," she said.

"Where are you going?"

"San Francisco," answered Meg. "Didn't you know? Pedro is driving your sister down. I go along as chaperon."

Constance clutched the stool. The kitchen was spinning around dizzily. The stove stood on its pipe; the ceiling was where the floor should be. Pedro had asked her to go to San Francisco once.

With Meg as a chaperon, for the three days which must elapse between filing of intention to wed and the wedding.

"How long," stammered Constance, "will you be away?"

Meg slapped the ribbon rolls into a pan. "Three days," she said. "I'll be comin' home alone on the train. If you're to be in Beachport that day, I'm hopin' you'll pick me up."

In the time it took Meg to put cinnamon rolls into a pan and slide them into the oven, Constance reviewed her future. One of two things: marriage to John, weighted down with his kindness, passively accepting his wealth until her spirit curdled within her; or an emaciated spinster, brightly coo, selling doves to prospective newly-weds.

"There, now," Meg straightened up from the oven, dusted her hands and smiled at Constance. "I'm going to wash my hands and put on a fresh apron. I'll put the coffee pot on, and we'll have a hot roll before you go."

Constance sat because she thought her limbs wouldn't hold her upright. The tea kettle chuckled. The kitchen clock ticked, and Constance lived a lifetime.

"Now then," Meg was back in fresh gingham. "Nice fresh coffee; nothin' like it, pet."

They sat at the end of the table with a tea towel spread for their cups. The rolls were hot, rich and spicy. They tasted like wood to Constance.

and my soul's fair pitted with the sin of me thoughts, these days."

"Sins? You, Meg?"

"Quarrelling!" Meg nodded solemnly. "Wantin' to take a hand where I shouldn't. Peter and Pedro quarrellin' like they never have in their life. Peter callin' Pedro . . . and I shouldn't say his words, and Pedro callin' his father a weak-kneed old blather-skite to lit wimen folk draw the wool over his eyes."

"W-what are . . . were they quarrelling about? Or shouldn't I ask?" "Faith, and I don't know," sighed Meg. "Well, maybe this trip will cool Pedro off. He's goin' down for Pedersen; goin' to pick up a crowd of ranch workers and bring them back. That sister a yours heard him makin' arrangements and she got herself a ride down, though he said he wouldn't bring her back."

Constance's white teeth cut through the warm bun. "Meg, these are the most delicious rolls I ever tasted."

"Glad you like them, pet. Here I'll wrap up a few for you. Sakes alive, it's time for us at the dairy!" Constance arrived at the barn; slim, gay, face bright, and mouth liberally crusted with sugar and cinnamon. It was a glorious world.

Pedro, watching the patrol of cows ambling into the barns after being brushed; inspecting Manuel and Francisco, Bobo and Carlos; Pascal, Luis and Labarta; and finding them immaculate, though rebellious, he turned to Constance.

"Better wash your face," he advised.

Constance was too happy to be rebuffed. She felt she had received an eleventh hour's reprieve. She pushed a napkin-wrapped cinnamon roll at him. "Meg's," she said.

Pedro accepted the roll, his eyes lighting.

Constance came back from the washroom, her face rosy clean. "Now go wash yours," she advised him in his own tone, and whisked into the barn.

Pedro, Donna and Meg departed for San Francisco. Constance and John watched them off, waved to them as they went down El Camino Real. Meg's plumed hat bobbing. Meg sat in the rear; good Meg, even Donna couldn't work fast with the stout Irishwoman watching her.

Despite Julian's black looks and the sadness of Dolores, Constance was happy. With new men to handle the work, she would be relieved and could give more time to figuring ways and means of stretching the money to meet the costs.

"If I can get through this first year," she reasoned, "the others will be easy."

She was already half way through. The herds had adapted themselves to the ranch with patient gratitude for good feed, care and comfortable quarters. They were repaying with rich milk.

El Cabrillo, stirred from centuries of slumber, was producing food for both the cattle and the people.

The Cabrillos were already heavily in debt, but that wasn't Constance's concern. When Beachport realized that John Raskhorne only paid grocery and gasoline bills, they'd be more careful of the credit gave.

She would borrow no more from John. For some time a plan had been forming in her mind. First, she must have these three years to drive El Cabrillo could be run as a dairy farm at a profit, and then she would go to the moneyed men of Beachport and borrow the money to repay John.

After that? She wouldn't think beyond that. Somehow she would make enough to pay off the principal of the new loan.

Pedro drove in at dusk. Constance heard him talking to Pedersen. The men would be housed at different places that first night; the discharged El Cabrillo men were to be driven to Beachport the next morning.

She slept contented. With Donna in San Francisco, and Nadine and Don visiting a neighboring ranch for a few days, the house was quiet.

It was the quietness that awakened her: a queer stillness like the weight of dead air. She lay still for a moment, and then she heard shouts.

Constance scrambled into her clothes and ran outdoors. The sky to the north was dull red. She ran to the hill and stopped short.

That great field of golden grain was scarlet. Rimmed with fire, eating steadily toward its heart.

Constance went back to the house. Julian was at the patio door, half clothed, a candle in his hand, his eyes in the flickering light black discs of fanatical triumph.

Constance passed him, then turned. "Who set that fire, Julian?" she demanded.

"Senorita," he returned, "El Cabrillo was ordained a cattle ranch. The spirit of these first Don Cabrillo, he have return to show hees displeasure."

Constance started to say more; to force him to tell what he knew; but it was useless. She went to her office and crossed off the four-figured black total she had that day placed against the debit column.

The next morning she went to Peter Taylor and demanded Julian to be fired. Taylor, tired, his leg aching, his eyebrows scorched, shook his head. "I can't, Michael. Julian is part of the ranch; like myself, he's another of your father's bright ideas. You'll have to sell the place to get rid of him, and that . . . that would be cruel. He loves it as we do."

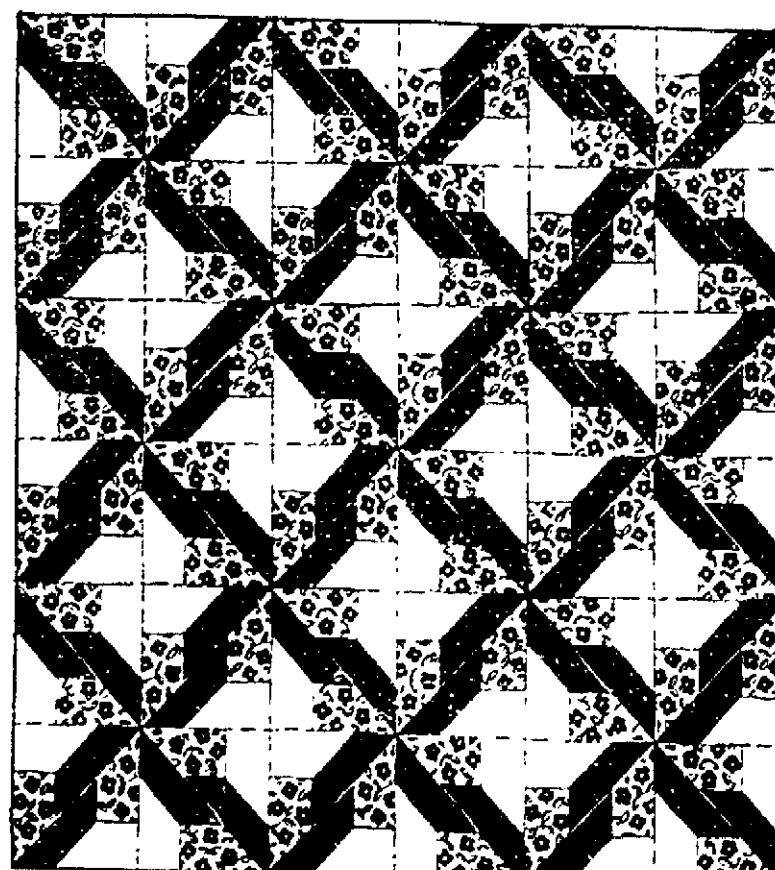

Constance turned to see Pedro coming from the barns, and Don, back from his visit, racing up the hill.

Don was excited. "Boy, that was some conflagration," he said. "We heard about it on the radio; call for help by the fire warden. Sure burned up the old hay, didn't it? Well, Sis, that's what you get. Serves you right for trying to be the Almighty."

"Pedro stood tense, silent. Peter Taylor hunched his shoulders and scowled. "Is that anyway to talk to your sister, young man?"

ASTRONOMY QUESTIONS
Two good questions appear in the following letter:
Dear Uncle Ray:
"I am a student in the eighth grade and for some time have had two questions about geography. Unable to find an answer elsewhere, I have resorted to the place I think I will find the most reliable answer—your column."
"The first is whether the sun is closer to the earth in summer than it is in winter. The second is which of the planets comes closest to the earth. Venus and Mars are generally accepted as the two closest. I know Venus is closest on the sun side and Mars on the outer side, but there is some doubt as to the closer of the two."
"Yours truly,
"Eugene Hogan"

The answer to the first question may seem a bit hard to believe at first. The sun is farther away from us in summer than in winter. We might expect it to be the other way around.
It is not the added distance of the sun which changes the weather. It is the slant at which the sun's rays strike the earth. Because the earth is tilted on its axis, the north temperate zone receives sunlight on much more of a slant in December, January and February than in June, July and August.

In Australia and South Africa, it is the other way around. These parts of the earth get slanting rays in June, July and August, and have cold weather. They receive more direct rays in December, January and February, so they have summer while we are having winter.
In the latter part of December, the sun is about 91,500,000 miles from the earth. In the latter part of June, it is about 94,500,000 miles from the earth. The average distance is just about 93,000,000 miles.
If we think only of the main planets, it is true that Venus is closest on the sun side of the earth, and Mars is closest on the outer side. Venus comes closer to the earth than Mars.

When I speak of "main planets," I do not include the planetoids, or "little planets." They are small objects, perhaps parts of a broken planet. Certain of the planetoids, including one called Eros, come closer to the earth than Venus ever does.

Chorus Will Give Concert At Temple

The Pilgrim Chorus of Green Bay, under the direction of Earl E. Fisk, will appear in concert at 8:15 the evening of Nov. 20 at the Masonic temple. The program will be sponsored by the activities committee of the temple headed by A. O. Kuehnsted, one of a number of events being planned for the fall and winter months.

The Pilgrim chorus sang twice at the Kiwanis International convention in Minneapolis, Minn., last summer, and after its second appearance Mr. Fisk was elected a member of the international committee on music for 1941. He was chosen as one of eight conductors to direct the World's fair concert given by the Associated Glee Clubs of America in the Court of Peace at the New York World's fair in July, 1939, the huge chorus of 5,000 trained voices being the largest male chorus ever assembled in the United States. The concerts were broadcast from coast to coast over all national networks.

On this occasion Mana Zucca, composed of the song, "I Love Life," and many other popular classics, said "I wish I could have Mr. Fisk conduct 'I Love Life' every time I hear it sung in America. I never heard it sound better."

Mr. Fisk, one of the best known choral conductors in the country, is a past president of the Wisconsin Male Chorus association and a former member of the board of governors of the Association Glee Clubs of America. He studied music at Lawrence Conservatory of Music under William Harper and at the University of Wisconsin under Herbert Stohart, now head of the music department for Metro-Goldwin-Mayer in Hollywood. At Wisconsin Mr. Fisk was leader of the glee club.

Fisk Singers To Perform At Church

The Fisk Jubilee Singers of Fisk university, Nashville, Tenn., Negro vocal ensemble, will appear Nov. 25 at First Methodist church under auspices of the men of the church.

The story of the Fisk Jubilee Singers is a dramatic tale which traces the ascent of 11 young Negro men and women from breakfast in slave cabins of hominy and salt bacon to dinners in mansions of the wealthy and receptions in drawing rooms of European nobility. It tells how in three short years they carried their haunting melodies forged from their experiences in the rice swamp and cotton field into the sophisticated homes of the wealthy in America and then far across the waters into palaces of European royalty.

Immediately after the Civil war, General Clinton B. Fisk, distinguished soldier-educator, met with representatives of the American Missionary association to establish a liberal arts college for Negroes in Nashville, and on Jan. 9, 1869, the rambling one-story hospital barracks recently evacuated by troops of the Union army opened their doors without charge to all who came.

Under the leadership of George L. White, son of a village blacksmith of Cadiz, N. Y., the students with promising voices were given special musical training, and after successful concerts in Nashville, Memphis and Chattanooga, he organized a student choir to travel throughout the north and east to raise money for a new campus and new building.

In 1875 they returned to the college to celebrate the dedication of Jubilee hall, named for them and built with money they had earned in interpreting to the world, through the slave songs of their fathers, the joy, pathos and religious devotion of their race.

The present group of Jubilee Singers under the direction of Mrs. James A. Myers has the endorsement of Walter Damrosch, David Mannes, Eva Gauthier, Alma Gluck, Roland Hayes who was formerly a Fisk student and one of the Jubilee group, and the French artists, Ravel and Rabaud.

Appleton and Oshkosh High school football teams will battle for fifth and sixth positions in the Fox River Valley conference standings when they clash at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Nov. 11, at Whiting field of Lawrence college. The game also will be the feature attraction of the high school homecoming which opened last night with a parade.

The Terrers and Indians have won two games each and lost four so far this season. Oshkosh came out of the doldrums to beat the two Sheboygan teams on successive weekends and then lost to Fond du Lac by a single touchdown. Appleton defeated Sheboygan North but lost to Central. Its second win was over Manitowoc. Against Fond du Lac, Appleton scored as many touchdowns as the Cardinals but missed two points and lost the game.

Oshkosh's offense is built around Arden Luker who can do everything well if he gets just a little help from his mates. And in recent exhibitions, the help has been forthcoming.

With Charles Kliefoth out of competition, Appleton coaches have found it necessary to revise their tactics for the final game. Bill Burton has been moved into the backfield for his defensive ability and generalship. Horn will play the left half spot vacated by Kliefoth and Nickasch will remain at right half with DeLong as the blocker.

Burton's spot at end will be taken over by Bob Bowers who has done well every time he has gotten a chance to show. The other end will be Stewart Cooper. The tackles will remain Pekarske and Murphy, the guards will be Kain and Wettengel and Currie will toss the ball from center.

Flying Dutchmen Will Meet Marines Sunday

Little Chute — The Flying Dutchmen gridders will be hosts to the Cherryland Marines of Sturgeon Bay at the local park Sunday afternoon in the second game of their home and home contest. The Marines topped the first game last Sunday, 6 to 0, but the Dutchmen are out to even the series.

The Dutchmen have been crippled the last couple games but all players are expected out for Sunday's tilt, a benefit affair for Dick De Bruin who has been laid up for six weeks with an injury received in the Dutchmen-Milwaukee Phantom game.

Zephyrs Close Grid Season With Kaukauna

15 Seniors to Play In Last Contest Next Monday Night

Menasha — St. Mary's High school gridders will seek an upset victory when they close their 1940 season at Kaukauna Monday night. Fifteen seniors will be playing their last game for the Zephyrs.

The seniors on the squad are Frank Stanak, Ben Kluba, William Beyer, Don Hoks, Sylvester Burghardt, Farnham Johnson, Leo Miller, Robert Birling, Virgil Lingoski, Wilbur Folt, Gilbert Huelsbeck, Norbert Giesen, Elmer Dorzeveler, Robert Pack, and Vernon Coppaner.

The Zephyrs will have a difficult task against Kaukauna which clinched its third straight championship in the western division of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference. The Kaws have run up a string of 19 straight victories and will be seeking their seventh straight this season.

According to reports from Kaukauna Karl Giordana may not be able to play because of injuries received in the New London game two weeks ago. However, the Kaws still have numerous backs capable of lugging the ball and Rohan and Alger still can snare passes although they may miss the throwing of Giordana.

Several shifts have been made in the Zephyr lineup in practices during the past week. Probable starters will be Norbert Beyer and Albert Kobinsky at ends, Bob Birling and Sylvester Burghardt at guards, Tom Verbrick and Wilbur Folt at tackles, and William Beyer at center. The backfield probably will have Al Taves at quarterback, Len Schipperling and Farnham Johnson at halfbacks and Emmet Hoks at fullback.

Comparative scores indicate that the Zephyrs will have a hard contest. They lost to Neenah while Kaukauna drubbed the Kaws, they beat New London 12 to 7 while Kaukauna defeated the Builders 21 to 7.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

The annual meeting of the Northern league will be held this weekend in Minneapolis. The hope is that Wausau and Eau Claire will ask to resign so they can join the Wisconsin State League.

However, there's another report, that Frank H. Wade, owner of the Duluth, Minn., team will object to Wausau withdrawing but doesn't give a whoop about Eau Claire. Wade alone can stop the Wausau move and says he intends to take up the matter with Judge Bramham if necessary.

That adjourned meeting of the Appleton Baseball club comes up Wednesday evening at the Appleton State bank basement. Indications are there are two factions maneuvering for control of the club and our personal opinion is that everyone who holds a share should come out, listen to the comments and arguments, and then cast his or her own vote.

Making a plea for ambitious young players between the ages of 18 and 20, Sports Editor Jimmy Powers of the New York Daily News says that some day, "if I ever get enough money together," he's going to organize a "Little Brother" league and make a deal with each major league club so the kids could play in the parks while the big league players are on the road.

"An interlocking schedule could be arranged between the minor league and the major league," explains Powers. "Kids would get Class D salaries and the best of care and attention. And fans could see lively, sprightly ball for an admission fee of 25 cents.

"The tragedy of baseball is that many a youngster is ruined, literally and figuratively, knocking around some of the Class D wheels I have seen. Besides, many boys cannot afford to live far from home. With a big league park to play in, a fraction of the big league attendance to pull from, and a workmanlike farm arrangement whereby the home club has first call on the home talent—the idea stands more than a 50-50 chance of being mutually profitable all around."

Savior Canadeo easily beat Enoch McClain, Davenport Negro, at Fond du Lac the other evening and now is reported heading west to turn pro. Jimmy Coyne and Johnny Dux, Fond du Lac, also won their bouts. Referee Dauber Jaeger caught a punch flush on the chin during the evening and St. Norbert college students presented Canadeo with a traveling bag.

At Sheboygan, Chuck Presser, West Allis, stopped Al McPherson, Keshena, in the first round, William Black, Appleton, beat James Lorier, Sheboygan, and Smokey Van Boxtel, Little Chute, lost a decision to Henry Hogan, West Allis.

Looks like the Fox River Valley Sports writers will have some chastising to do when they meet shortly at Sheboygan. Sports Editor Art Daley at Fond du Lac pens a few lines in which he indicates something is on his conscience and at the same time tries to pass off "You, too," on John Walter of the Green Bay Press-Gazette. Says Daley:

"Recently Brother John Walter of the Green Bay Press-Gazette said that Brother Daley would have some explaining to do at the next meeting of the Fox River Valley Sportswriters' association. At the last meeting in Oshkosh, we told the scribes that Fond du Lac had only two lettermen returning and a lot of green material. . . And now, much to everybody's surprise, the Cards are fighting for a possible championship. . . We really meant what we said at the last meeting. . . We weren't pulling anything. . . If we remember right, Brother Walter said that East hasn't got a thing. . . In fact East wasn't even favored as a contender. . . West, Manitowoc and Oshkosh were given the "glad eye." . . Can we help it if Coach Mike Calvano and Coach Tom Hearden are making good teams literally out of nothing? . . . Maybe Brother Walter had better get ready for an explanation, too."

A member of a certain Big Nine coaching staff followed with consuming interest the hullabaloo raised by L. W. St. John when the Ohio State athletic director accused Coach Carl Snavely of signaling the Cornell team from the bench. "It reminded me quite painfully," this chap admitted, "of the time I was coaching a minor college team and succumbed to the impulse to signal for a pass. We were leading 7 to 0 when I made a throwing motion that my quarterback saw and understood. He threw the pass, it was intercepted for a touchdown run and my team promptly fell apart. Oh yes, that cured me of signaling from the bench!"

A daily entertainment feature of the University of Wisconsin football training table is the singing of a trio composed of Johnny Tennant, Fred Gage and Don Hoskins. The boys not only warble but also write their own songs. They will go BIG TIME Saturday night after the Badger-Columbia game in New York, appearing in Helzapoppin at the invitation of Olsen and Johnson. The Badger songsters were the hit of the pep meeting before the Wisconsin-Illinois game and almost ignited the bonfire prematurely.

George Paskvan, the Wisconsin fullback, owns a pair of feet that did not slight him in their growth. Kidded about the size of his dogs at the training table, the La Grange Pulverizer replied:

"Why shouldn't I have big feet. Any time the old mare got sick, they just hitched me to the plow."

Paskvan and Johnny Tennant, the Badgers' senior left halfback, told Coach Harry Stuhldreher before the Illinois game that they had devised a new play, "It's this way, coach," explained Paskvan. "The backs go over to one side of the field and leave the linemen by themselves. We don't want them to get confused and spoil the play. The play winds up with me taking a wide lateral and running for a touchdown. You'll be surprised."

"I certainly will and so will you if I ever see it," laughed Stuhldreher, who wouldn't put anything past his squad.

Chicago — George McAfee, the Chicago Bears' brilliant rookie halfback from Duke university, has introduced a new idea in football footwear. Instead of wearing standard high-topped football shoes McAfee effects low-cut track sprinting shoes, equipped with football cleats. Bobby Swisher, fleet-footed halfback, and Ken Kavanaugh, rookie end from Louisiana State, have adopted McAfee's idea and also wear track shoes while playing.

Michigan Gridders Spurred by Their Pledge To 'Make It A Year Yost Will Never Forget'

WATSON N. SPOELSTRA

Ann Arbor, Mich. —(AP)—Wags have dubbed Michigan "Tom Harmon University," but the Wolverines in their drive toward an undefeated football season are giving the high-scoring All-America back super-support.

Generally overshadowed by attention given to the hard-working Harmon's spectacular play are three factors which Coach H. O. (Fritz) Crisler says are unique in his 18-year coaching career. They are team speed, deadly downfield blocking and team spirit.

Michigan's line, which averages 196 pounds from end to end, carries a wallop that is based on speed. Sophomore Al Wistert, 212-pound tackle and fastest lineman, can extend Harmon in a foot race.

Crisler rates his team as the best downfield blocking unit he has ever seen. With Guards Milo Sukup and Ralph Fritz leading the way and Wistert not far behind, the Michigan forwards have repeatedly mowed down the secondary this season to shake Harmon loose.

'Captain Of Blockers'

This blocking efficiency isn't mere coincidence. In his first official act Capt. Forst Evashevski appointed Joe Rogers as downfield blocking captain and the big end has been vigilant in keeping his mates on the job.

Evashevski also sponsored a voluntary pledge signed by all squad members "to make this season one which Yost will never forget." Athletic Director Fielding H. (Hurricane) Yost will retire next spring and Michigan's team spirit is built on this dedication.

There are other individual factors in Michigan's big year. Evashevski, in addition to his reputation as a great blocker, has won Crisler's praise as an astute field general.

"Our confidence in Evashevski as a signal caller has been justified," Crisler says. "We measure a quarterback's efficiency on his success on moving across the goal line from the 20 or 25-yard line and Fine morale is one of the reasons for Michigan success this year. This shot of Coach Fritz Crisler and End Ed Frutig is a good illustration.

in his three seasons Evashevski has been at his best in selection of plays in that area."

Westfall Impressive

Fullback Bob Westfall, although he has scored only one touchdown this year, has rolled up a four-yard average in 116 tries by rushing.

In the Illinois game, Westfall outgained Harmon three to one over the slippery turf.

The comeback of Paul Kromer from a knee injury has helped Michigan. Kromer, who outscored Harmon as a sophomore, has lost his blazing speed but his experience and punting have proved invaluable.

Harmon's understudy, Sophomore Cliff Wise, has had few opportunities as a stand-in this year, but his passing and kicking is above average and he scored a touchdown against California in the opener.

Michigan has been primarily a running team this season, but in End Ed Frutig the Wolverines have a standout pass receiver. He caught touchdown aerials against Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Michigan's biggest weakness appears to be a shortage of capable reserves. That's why even the curious quarterbacks are reticent about forecasting an undefeated season with the major powerhouses yet to be met.

Washington at Brooklyn.

Cleveland at New York.

Pittsburgh at Philadelphia.

Green Bay — Disappointed over last week's loss at the hands of the Bears but still hopeful of winning the four National league titles remaining of their schedule, the Green Bay Packers take to the road this weekend for another trip to Chicago where they battle the Cardinals in Comiskey park Sunday afternoon.

Coach E. L. (Curly) Lambeau has been hard at work whipping the men into the proper frame of mind for the quartet of games left, contests which will send the Packers mark the grave. But, our organization, of which Frank Dole was a member, is small. There are less than 40 names on the roster, not enough to do the sort of job we should like to do for so good a cause. For that reason the association is venturing outside its own membership in an effort to perpetuate the memory of a man who gave more than 40 years of his life to furthering the interests of dogs and their owners.

To Mr. Dole may be given much of the credit for establishing the bullterrier in the United States, and many other breeds fared well because of his energetic activity in the dog game. He was highly respected as an all-breed judge and as a gentleman.

Contributions in any amount will be welcome from individuals and dog clubs, or any other organizations. They may be mailed to the writer in care of this newspaper and a receipt will be promptly issued. Checks should be made out to the Frank F. Dole Memorial Fund.

"Bigger than ever," is the promise of the Western Specialty Clubs association show at Chicago, Nov. 30, Dec. 1. Last year there were 1,115 dogs entered, according to A. F. Kramer, president. The association is made up of clubs sponsoring 24 distinct and different breeds, the finest representatives of which are expected to be bunched. As was the case last year, many Fox river valley dogs are being entered. The show will be staged in the Coliseum.

Cut to two days instead of three, the Westminster Kennel club will hold its 65th annual show at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on Feb. 11-12. It is being held under the new American Kennel club ruling for limit shows. Other than puppies, only dogs that have placed first, second or third in official classes at point shows may be entered. And only clubs having 1500 or more entries in their last previous show are eligible to stage such an event.

It is nearly approaches in quality and interest the other writings of its author, this book should be fascinating reading. It is by William Cary Duncan, dog editor of Outdoor Life, a prominent breeder of English setters, and a director of the American Kennel club. We are itching to thumb its pages.

Doings of Don and Jean These young springers are 11 weeks old as this is written. Last week they were taken out of their kennel run for the first time. They inched their way along slowly and cautiously at first, but the snoring instinct soon revealed and it wasn't long before they were boldly dashing into rose and barberry bushes with an abandon which we hope they demonstrate in the field a year from now. They hup before their food dishes are placed on the ground for them, and a little bit of cooked liver has got them coming to call quite promptly—sometimes.

Of 40 letters she received one day, she knew only two of her correspondents. Then she recalled a friend at The Citadel had threatened to instruct freshmen to write to her.

The contents of the letters, Polly explained, were largely requests for pictures. One young fellow described himself as "big in the middle and little at both ends."

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR

In a cemetery outside Metuchen, N. J. lie the earthly remains of Frank F. Dole. The last resting place stands neglected, unmarked.

Passers-by do not know that one of the country's outstanding figures in the realm of dog folks is buried there. It is the intention of the Dog Writers' Association that they shall know, that a suitable stone shall mark the grave.

But, our organization, of which Frank Dole was a member, is small. There are less than 40 names on the roster, not enough to do the sort of job we should like to do for so good a cause. For that reason the association is venturing outside its own membership in an effort to perpetuate the memory of a man who gave more than 40 years of his life to furthering the interests of dogs and their owners.

To Mr. Dole may be given much of the credit for establishing the bullterrier in the United States, and many other breeds fared well because of his energetic activity in the dog game. He was highly respected as an all-breed judge and as a gentleman.

Contributions in any amount will be welcome from individuals and dog clubs, or any other organizations. They may be mailed to the writer in care of this newspaper and a receipt will be promptly issued. Checks should be made out to the Frank F. Dole Memorial Fund.

"Bigger than ever," is the promise of the Western Specialty Clubs association show at Chicago, Nov. 30, Dec. 1. Last year there were 1,115 dogs entered, according to A. F. Kramer, president. The association is made up of clubs sponsoring 24 distinct and different breeds, the finest representatives of which are expected to be bunched. As was the case last year, many Fox river valley dogs are being entered. The show will be staged in the Coliseum.

Cut to two days instead of three, the Westminster Kennel club will hold its 65th annual show at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on Feb. 11-12. It is being held under the new American Kennel club ruling for limit shows. Other than puppies, only dogs that have placed first, second or third in official classes at point shows may be entered. And only clubs having 1500 or more entries in their last previous show are eligible to stage such an event.

Arthur Sullivan, Bridgeport, Conn., is blind. Yet he has been a reporter for 12 years. He covers all manner of stories for the Bridgeport Sunday Herald with the help of his faithful "Seeing Eye" dog. His most thrilling and hazardous assignments was the recent New England hurricane.

This week a new book, "Dog Training Made Easy," comes off the presses of Little, Brown and Company, Boston. It is nearly approaches in quality and interest the other writings of its author, this book should be fascinating reading. It is by William Cary Duncan, dog editor of Outdoor Life, a prominent breeder of English setters, and a director of the American Kennel club. We are itching to thumb its pages.

Doings of Don and Jean These young springers are 11 weeks old as this is written. Last week they were taken out of their kennel run for the first time. They inched their way along slowly and cautiously at first, but the snoring instinct soon revealed and it wasn't long before they were boldly dashing into rose and barberry bushes with an abandon which we hope they demonstrate in the field a year from now. They hup before their food dishes are placed on the ground for them, and a little bit of cooked liver has got them coming to call quite promptly—sometimes.

Of 40 letters she received one day, she knew only two of her correspondents. Then she recalled a friend at The Citadel had threatened to instruct freshmen to write to her.

The contents of the letters, Polly explained, were largely requests for pictures. One young fellow described himself as "big in the middle and little at both ends."

Pennsylvania is out after the starlings, but suggests that one way to make enemies is to drive a flock of the pests over to a neighbor's land. They say that starlings are edible in pot pies, but don't guarantee this statement.

Mrs. O. A. Smith, president, and Mrs. James Carew, vice president of the Monday Night club, will attend a county convention of the Federation of Women's clubs at Manawa Tuesday. The day's program opens at 9:30 with a luncheon served at the Methodist church at noon. Mrs. J. G. Theiler, Tomahawk, state music chairman, will discuss the life and accomplishments of Stephen Foster and will sing several of his compositions.

Omigosh! It looks like a tough season ahead for the sportscasters. Here are the names of some of Fordham's up and coming freshmen: Jendryczyk, Yachanich, Yuckanovich, Andrejco, U'renevich, Goetliak, Slodowski, Chervenko and others too hard to write, let alone pronounce.

Bird Season Produces More Yarns Than Several Fishing Seasons

Madison—Besides game, the upland bird season this year netted a crop of unusual stories as hunters related their field adventures to the conservation department.

One hunter reported that a retriever he was trying to educate brought him a bundle of hay that turned out to be a mouse nest containing a half dozen hairless baby rodents. The hunter hopes that the dog can finally work up an interest in pheasants.

Another hunter informed the department that he had winged a pheasant that escaped into a woodchuck hole. He poked into the hole and out came a half dozen healthy pheasant chicks. They escaped before he could bring up his gun.

An unsuccessful hunter was calling it a day and started home-ward when he saw what he thought were loose pheasant tail feathers extending from a clump of grass and tried to pick them up. An attached bird that had been hiding escaped before he could bring up his gun.

A hunter reported that he stepped on a mound of grass and found that he had bagged a hiding pheasant.

A helpful individual, learning that the department is collecting bird bands, supplied the department with a band from the leg of a Plymouth Rock.

New Pastor to Appear In Weyauwega Pulpit

Weyauwega — Members of the Lutheran church are looking forward to Sunday morning, when the Rev. L. J. Habeck will preach his initial sermon. English services will be held at 9 o'clock and the German services at 10:15 both in the forenoon.

At the annual meeting Thursday of the Ladies Lutheran Aid of St. Peter church, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Edward Kramer; vice president, Mrs. Myron Mather; Jr. secretary, Mrs. Henry Hirtle; treasurer, Mrs. Bertha Ankland; organist, Mrs. Kurt Ankland; food commissioner, Mrs. Clara Tesch. Plans were discussed for an annual Christmas party to be held early in December.

J. J. Habeck, the new pastor's wife, was received as a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown Morey entertained at a family dinner Thursday in honor of Mrs. Morey's father, A. B. Minter's, eighty-eighth birthday anniversary. Mr. Minton, a native of Waupaca county, has since the death of his wife 30 years ago, lived with his daughter Mrs. Brown Morey.

Minnesota, Michigan Collide Today Before Crowd of 64,000

Minneapolis — (AP)—Michigan and Minnesota collided in a gridiron masterpiece today before 64,000 in Memorial stadium.

The Gophers concentrated on stopping the Wolverines' great Tom Harmon for the third straight year. Harmon played against Minnesota in 1938 and 1939, but has yet to score on the Gophers. At Ann Arbor last fall George Franck and Bruce Smith did for Minnesota what Harmon had been billed to do for Michigan, and Coach Bernie Bierman's squad emerged with a one-sided 20 to 7 victory.

Tommy had more to work with today in the annual little brown jug battle and he was backed strongly by Michigan's loyal fans to end a six game losing streak to Minnesota. Michigan last defeated Minnesota in 1932 by a 3 to 0 count.

This year all of their opponents have scored against the Gophers. Michigan has blanked all its foes except Michigan State, which counted two touchdowns. The Wolverines held California, Harvard, Illinois and Pennsylvania scoreless. The Gophers have yielded seven touchdowns to Washington, Nebraska, Ohio State, Iowa and Northwestern.

Bloomington, Ind. —(AP)—Indiana University offers a revamped line-up today as it tries to maintain an unmarred record in its series with Michigan State college.

In three previous meetings the Hoosiers have won twice; the third game was a draw.

Joe Tofil, Crimson fullback, was chosen by Coach Bob McMillin to call signals in place of Harold Hursch.

The Spartan game loses Indiana's home season.

Lincoln, Neb. —(AP)—Nebraska, leading in the race for the Big Six football championship, and Iowa, down near the bottom of the Big Ten standings, tangle here today in a game expected to draw more than 34,000 spectators. The temperature was expected to be in the low 40's, marking the first time Nebraska has played at home this fall with the mercury below 60 degrees.

Evansville, Ill. —(AP)—Northwestern's once-defeated Wildcats take the field as an overwhelming favorite today to defeat Bob Zuppke's Illinois eleven and register their fourth Western conference victory.

Both teams are in good shape for the clash, although Northwestern's Bill DeCorrvoant may not see service because of a lame ankle. The Illini has lost four straight games while the Wildcats have won four of five, bowing only to Minnesota.

New Haven, Conn. —(AP)—Cornell, which never had beaten Yale in five attempts, sought to do a good job of it today before 40,000 spectators. The Big Red team, considered the best in the east, was such an overwhelming favorite over Yale's worst sound in years that the size of the score appeared to be the only question. The Elis were further troubled by injuries that sent Ray Anderson, Bill Bell and Henry Ellis to the sidelines.

Baltimore —(AP)—Notre Dame's undefeated fighting Irish and once-beaten Navy renewed their 13-year-old football rivalry today in Baltimore civic stadium.

A sellout crowd of 63,000 was expected to see the battle that Navy had coach Swede Larson said would be close and "real tough." Notre Dame, although outplayed, defeated Army 7-0 a week ago,

Duke University was playing an Eastern team. An end on the Duke team complained to the referee that one of the opposing tackles was holding him. On the next play the referee caught the offender and barked:

"Fifteen yards on you for holding!"

Gleefully the Duke end turned to the offending player and blurted:

"How do you like that, you blankety-blank!"

The referee was right on him: "Fifteen yards on you for swearing, and that makes it even."

Play was resumed and on the very next play the Eastern tackle again held the Duke end. The referee saw the violation:

"Fifteen yards on you for holding," he yelled, "and I don't give a damn what he calls you!"

Names Is Names Shortest man on the Williams football squad is Quarterback Tower. The London (O) highs have a couple of Slaughter in the backfield. U. of Miami's (Fla) quarterback is named Sapp, while the Panthers brothers do their stuff at tackle for Colorado. Who's next?

Bulletin Board Johnny Mize, the Cardinal slugger, is a regular at Southeastern Games these Saturdays. Duke rooters are moaning about the transfer of Dick Zimmerman, sophomore tackle, to Ohio State. Al Schacht will start his clowning tour in Cuba next year. Football ladies' first (so far as we know) ladies' day will be observed by the Long Island Indians and the Providence Steamrollers here tomorrow.

Omigosh! It looks like a tough season ahead for the sportscasters. Here are the names of some of Fordham's up and coming freshmen: Jendryczyk, Yachanich, Yuckanovich, Andrejco, U'renevich, Goetliak, Slodowski, Chervenko and others too hard to write, let alone pronounce.

Memorial Is Outward Proof Of Family Bond, Maker Says

Without a sense of continuity between one generation and the next, a family can scarcely be said to exist at all, points out the Twin City Monument Works, 301-307 Main street, Neenah. Those who forget their intimate dead may rightfully expect to be forgotten in turn, for they have deliberately cut the bonds of memory and affection which join them to the past and to the future, and without which their lives become a brief and utterly meaningless event.

Berliner Beer Aid to Cheer Up Indoor Season

Use Finest Products In Brewing; Sam Mader Is Distributor

With the indoor entertainment season now here with accompanying increased entertainment in the home and at popular recreational and amusement places, Berliner, the beer of quality, made in Berlin, Wisconsin by the Berlin Brewing Company, is the familiar sight on hundreds of family, restaurant, and tavern tables.

For parties of all descriptions, for informal visits and planned occasions, Berliner beer is today as always bringing cheer to many of these gay gatherings. It is being used to add to the tastiness of meals and luncheons and as a tonic for father and mother after a hard, long day.

At any social gathering (including the next event on the social calendar Thanksgiving) wise hosts or hostesses will be serving Berliner beer. Beer lovers like Berliner's smooth, mellow, pure, refreshing, and tangy taste so it is natural that Berliner should be particularly popular for all these purposes.

Pure, crystal-clear water goes into the making of Berliner along with the finest malt and hops available. Expert brew-masters carefully watch every bit that is made and proper ageing imparts that added smoothness so necessary to make Berliner beer so palatable.

For those who may not have yet experienced the enjoyment of a bottle or two of Berliner and to those who are already acquainted with this popular beer the local distributor, Sam Mader, suggests that now is an advantageous time to order a case and be ready for Thanksgiving entertaining. Tavern and home delivery service is available by phoning Sam Mader, 3029.

Aid Checks Issued

Wauwata — Pension checks as issued this week show a slight decrease for both blind and dependent children's aid, while checks for old age pensioners have increased approximately $300. The amounts of the checks sent out were $282 for blind; $8,164 for dependent children and $19,460 for old age. Hugh Johnson is pension administrator.

GEENEN'S NOVEMBER FUR COAT EVENT NOW IN PROGRESS—Geenen's, furriers since 1896, are acknowledged by thousands of style wise women as headquarters for fine furs in Appleton and vicinity, and never before, say store officials, have furs had the fashion appeal they now possess. Buyers are finding scores of beautiful coats to choose from (as indicated in the photo here) particularly during Geenen's November Fur Coat event which is now in progress. It is pointed out that purchasers at this time have the advantage of the widest selection assuring themselves of getting the "tops" in styling. Geenen's urge use of their layaway plan which calls for a small deposit in order to hold the selection until the time wanted. No extra carrying or storage charges are made and the terms are liberal.

Finkle Electric Adds Famous Line of Radios

Stromberg-Carlson Chosen Because of Sensational Changes

Readers of the Post-Crescent saw an announcement this week of particular importance issued by the Finkle Electric Company, 316 E. College avenue. The announcement pertained to the fact that the Finkle Electric company has taken on the Stromberg-Carlson line of radios, which as a result of several sensational, scientific improvements is today termed the radio of tomorrow.

Six years ago, Mr. Harwood Finkle, head of the firm, practically said "good bye" to the radio business because he felt that there had been no real improvement of major change in the new models offered on the market over the old. However, since such sensational advancements have been made in "frequency modulation" . . . that new system of staticless radio reception . . . Mr. Finkle lost no time in investigating that which promised, to his more than 2,000 radio customers, something new and sensational.

He found for example, that the leading manufacturer in this exciting, new field was one of the oldest and most reliable manufacturers in the business—Stromberg-Carlson. The quality for which this firm has always been famous, was another incentive to act fast in bringing to Appleton this "newest of new" in radio.

Most all of the new Stromberg-Carlson models are now equipped with the "frequency modulation" (F.M.) band being built-in right at the factory. They are ready to receive F. M. the moment it is available in Appleton. But in the meantime Stromberg-Carlson owners will enjoy the reception of their regular and favorite daily broadcasts.

A full complement of models are offered from the lovely table models at only $24.95 to the gorgeous instruments priced at $440. A never-to-be forgotten thrill awaits hearers, it is claimed, because the music is produced, as it has never been before, in tones that are usually lost in ordinary radios.

Finkle Electric extends a general invitation to the public to come see, and hear this superlative line of radio receiver and phonograph radio-combinations. Only in this way can the public fully understand why the Stromberg-Carlson patented features offer its owners something more than can be found in any other radio at any price. A generous trade-in and liberal terms policy at Finkies will make purchasing an easy, simple matter, it is pointed out.

Large Crowd Attends Supper at Leeman

Leeman — A large crowd attended the chicken-pie supper served Wednesday evening by the Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church at the Nels Nelson home. The proceeds will be used for repairing the church.

Miss Elinor Grandy, accompanied by her guest Miss Nellie Winslow of Pekin, Ill., spent a few days over the weekend with friends at Iron River, Mich.

Miss Dorothy Bergsbaken, teacher at Pleasant View school, reported the following pupils to have had a perfect record of attendance for October: John Carpenter, Melvin Guyette, Merton Strong, Gerald Panzenhagen, Ann Rohlik, Joseph Rush, Rose Samson, Rosemary Young, Ruth Samson and Blanch Samson.

DIM LIGHTS FOR SAFETY

DIAMONDS IN THE ROUGH — Kimberley, South Africa, where five of the properties of De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd., are situated, is the greatest center of diamond production in the world. The so-called Kimberley mine (upper left) is now closed but it is interesting because, like other mines at Kimberley, it is an ancient volcanic pipe. At right, is a view of the washing and crushing plants. Below, natives are sorting waste material from the mass of "blue ground" containing diamonds, coming from the depths of the mine. This is one of the many processes that sometimes produce such radiant gems as the 503-carat rough stone shown in the center. The Gemological Institute of America's fascinating display is now being shown in the window of Haertl's Jewelry store, Neenah. The display shows replicas of the world's famous diamonds, how diamonds are graded and how rough diamonds appear. The public is urged to take advantage of this opportunity to see this unusual display. The period of time which the display will remain at Haertl's is limited, it is pointed out.

"Whoopie John" Orchestra at Cinderella Thursday Night

One of the outstanding musical and entertainment features of the year makes its appearance at Cinderella Ballroom next Thursday, November 14, in the person of "Whoopie John" and his radio and recording orchestra. The organization originates from St. Paul, Minnesota where it is a tremendous favorite.

Among the accomplishments of Whoopie John's unit are 15 consecutive years of radio appearances and some 118 various records. These have been made for Decca, Columbia, Okeh, Vocalion and Brunswick. The outfit is featured on the NBC blue network, with WTCN in the Minnesota Twin Cities as the outlet.

Two attractions who appear with Whoopie John's 9-piece orchestra are Edna, the Dutch girl, and Pat, a comedian. Together with the orchestra, they help to produce an evening to be long remembered.

Despite the fact that this is the biggest outside attraction to be brought to Cinderella in some time, there will be no increase in the regular price. Charles Maloney, manager of Cinderella has announced. Admission therefore will remain as usual 20c to all. The same band will be featured at Eweco Park, also.

managed by Mr. Maloney, on Friday, November 15.

Dispute Over Band Director Continues; 15 Attend Rehearsal

Kimberly — Only 15 members of the Community band of 38 reported for rehearsal at the village hall Thursday evening, because of the dispute over the directorship between band members and the band commission. Henry Vanden Boogaard, manager of the band and secretary and treasurer of the commission, asserted that the commission has made its choice in a new director to succeed Prof. M. J. Heynen, who has retired.

The commission engaged Milton Herberg, Appleton, as the director while band members want William Maas. Vanden Boogaard said that despite the fact that there were 38 in the band of whom 23 did not show up, the organization would continue.

The village board now has a petition from the band members declaring that they would not return to rehearsals unless a change is made in the organization and management of the band.

Wm. Verhagen Post No. 60 of the American Legion will give a Thanksgiving social at the clubhouse on the evening of Nov. 17. Refreshments will be served.

The Passion play movie, "Golgotha," will be shown at the clubhouse next Thursday evening and will be sponsored by the Booster

Lutz Service Is Extra Value in Fuel Purchase

Consumers Can Get Free Ice Until March 1, Under Plan

The properly screened and expertly graded fuel offered by the Lutz Ice company cooperates and agrees with all types of heating plants in a way which pleases, this firm maintains. All well-known varieties, including the popular packaged Pocahontas, are delivered upon order by Lutz' efficient, courteous, and well-trained staff of drivers.

An adequate supply of dependable fuel is now a necessity with the advent of lower temperatures daily. Wise householders are, therefore, phoning the Lutz Ice Company and placing their orders for immediate delivery. If any doubt exists as to the proper size or type of coal the heating plant requires, the Lutz firm gladly offers its free advice service. In particular, if heating satisfaction was not of the best last winter, the firm invites the opportunity to scientifically inspect and recommend fuel which is certain to produce satisfactory, economical results.

Free ice service until March 1 is still being offered to purchasers of a new Coolerator, the popular air-conditioned refrigerator featured by Lutz'. Hundreds of present Coolerator owners know how well it fits into thrifty homemaking. These happy users testify to the fact that foods of any kind need not be covered in a Coolerator. Contents are left in an atmosphere of fresh, washed, constantly circulating air, retaining, therefore, all of their original freshness.

For high quality fuel, all popular brands, pure manufactured ice or a 10-day free trial of a new Coolerator with free ice, upon purchase of a Coolerator, until March 1 it is only necessary to phone 2, the Lutz Ice Company.
